He promised to work hard for Wright's election. Speeches from dozens of others were heard, pledging themselves to leave no s unturned to accomplish the defeat of the democratic statehouse nominees. The speech of Tom Watson urging all populists to support Bryan faithfully, regard less of what might be done by the democrats toward bringing about the withdrawal of Sewall, had a decided effect, and the "No Watson, no Bryan" sentiment that had characterized the speeches of the first day's session was noticeably absent in all speeches delivered yesterday.

Condemned lynching. Demanded election of all public officers by the people. Declared for a free ballot and a fair count and denounced the fee system, nmending that all public officers be placed on salaries.

Favored pensions for confederate soldiers and their widows. A resolution, offered by the platform committee, was adopted, authorizing the executive committee to withdraw six electors from the populist ticket should the democrats withdraw Sewall from their ticket and substitute Watson, the vacancies caused by the withdrawal of the populist electors to be filled by democrats. The convention adjourned before 1 o'clock. Immediately thereafter the executive committee met and elected John D. Cunningham, of Cobb, chairman of the

On motion of Mel Branch, of Columbia committee of three was sent to ascertain when the platform would be ready for presentation. Branch, of Columbia; T. E. Winn, of Gwinnett, and W. G. Carter, of Effingham, comprised the committee. They returned and reported that at least thirty minutes longer would be required before a report could be presented. A recess was then taken.

The interim was occupied by the delegates in shouting for Watson, abusing the democrats among themselves, eulogizing the virtues of the Hon. Seaborn Wright, and in other ways relieving themselves of the pent-up enthusiasm which seemed to exude from every pore.

The crowd which gathered in the con vention hall was enough to fill the seats twice over and then crowded the tisles and massed themselves around the speak-er's table so that those in the rear could with difficulty see the chairman.

the delegates, and they began to call for speakers. C. J. Thornton, of Columbus, was the first one honored. A delegate with bristling red hair and a voice like a foghorn, started down the center aisle from the speaker's table shout-ing "Thornton, Thornton!" at the top of his voice and casting his cagle eye nere and there as if he was seeking the big man from Muscogee with much earn-estness. Mr. Thornton was seated just under the speaker's desk, and the red-headed herald was going away from the man be sought as fast as he could. But he accom-plished his purpose. The crowd begin to call for Thornton, and Thornton was led to the speaker's desk and introduced by Judge Hines.

"The nation is beginning to realize that this country can only be saved by the peo-ple's party," began Mr. Thornton. "Hip! hip! hooray!" yelled a delegate. "Whoop la! Hit 'em agin!" shouted another.

"The people are crying for peace and prosperity," continued Thornton, somewhat perturbed by the enthusiastic way in which the delegates yelled in his ears whenever "Ain't it the truth?" bawled out a dele headed man with the fog-horn voice, who first called on Thornton to speak. "The only thing the people must do to be happy and prosperous and peaceful," shouted Thornton, "is to adopt our platform and vote for our candidates."

"Dat's de gord's trufe sho's you live, my white brudder," chimed in an old negro delegate bedecked with two red badges, one on each lapel of his coat.

Thornton concluded that the audience was doing about as much speaking as he was, and he decided to stop. As he bowed himself from the speaker's desk he was cheered enthusiastically by the deligates. Cross for Blackburn were rulsed from all parts of the hall. Editor B. M. Hackburn of Atlanta, was led toward the speaker's stand by his enthusiastic friends. He made a brief talk. At this juncture it was announced that the platform committee was ready to re-port. The chairman of the committee, W. Yancey Carter, of Hart, advanced to the speaker's table and in a loud voice read the platform.

Success beyond the most sanguine expectations has been achieved. Two years have witnessed a political revolution, which culminated at Chicago in the triumph of silver and the selection of Mr. Bryan as democracy's candidate for president. Today Mr. Bryan is on his way to New York, where he will formally accept the greatest honor and highest responsibility which can be tendered any man. This, then, is an appropriate time to announce that Mr. Bryan's work as editor has been finished. He will be succeeded by R. L. WHITNEY AS MARKET RULER. Rumor That He Indorsed Democracy

Causes Stock To Drop. New York, August 7.—The stock market was in a more disturbed and depressed state today than on yesterday. The calling of loans by the banks and other tenders to provide money to bridge over the trouble in Chicago and to move the cotton and wheat crops was attended by con-siderable liquidation of long accounts in stocks, and the bear operators took advantage of the opportunity to force down values. It was conceded that the decline was unwarranted, but there was an absence of purchasing power in the market and it could not be prevented. There were some buying orders from the trade but not enough to furnish support for stocks. On the other hand, stocks were offered in which there had been no trans action for weeks, indicating that sacrifices had to be made to secure funds. The total of sales was considerably larger than usual. The downward move tent was helped by a rumor that William. Whitney had said that Bryan would carry New York state. Mr. Whitney

Des Moines, Iowa, August 7.-William Jennings Bryan ended up seven hours of campaigning through Nebraska and Iowa t Des Moines tonight. His reception here was a fitting climax to the enthusiasm with which he had been greeted at a number of other places in this state.

The weather was sweltering hot during all of the journey. The crowds at the staions along the route of the Rock Island | road, however, did not seem to mind the heat and gave vent to their enthusiasm without regard to the height of the temperature. It was 9:30 o'clock when the train n which Mr. Bryan was a passenger pulled nto the station here. among other things:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentiemen—I esteem it a great privilege to be permitted even for a brief moment to stand before the citizens assembled in this, the capital city, of one of the greatest agricultural states of this union. It is not necessary for any one to come from abroad to enlighten you upon the issues of the campaign. Your own state is rich in orators, and in this campaign it will be richer than it has been before for a quarter of a century. (Great cheering.) You have here that statesman whom you delight to honor, and as I look back over the campaigns in which it has been my privilege to take part, there are no campaigns that I remember with more pleasure and pride than those two campaigns when, at the invitation of your people. I came to assist in the election of Horace Boles as governor of this state. (Continued cheering.) If in the national convention, which has just closed, the lot fell upon me rather than upon him, it was not because of superior merit, but because of the circumstances which surrounded that convention, and I do not take to myself the credit for what was done. I believe that these delegates were as honest and earnest a body of men as were ever assembled in convention, and after viewing the situation they decided, whether wisely or foolishly, time will tell, that under all the circumstances the nomination should fall on the one who did receive it, and I am on my way to the city of New York to receive the motification. I do not know how well I may be able to bear the standard which is to be placed in my hands, but I know this, that there is not one person in all this land who is more deeply in earnest iff this cause than he whom you have honored. (Loud applause.)

You shall not need orators this year. If every orator you have known were to be silent, orators would arise in every county and in every town and in every precinct of this state and proclaim the truth. Oratory sometimes has been laughed at but, my friends, oratory will be with us as long as the human r

He said that Georgia had for years been ruled by a political clique, but that the people had gathered at the populist convention to speak out their resentment against political bossism and the supremacy of the liquor men. He said that the ballot box had been debauched in Screven and the people were so aroused that they had revolted.

Concluding, Mr. White said:

"We have nominated a man of whom Georgians are proud. I unanimously second the nomination of Wright and promise to do all in my power to carry him to victory."

At this point Major McGregor entered the hall and whispered to Chairman Hines that the committee had the nominee for governor at the door, ready to enter.
"Clear the alsle," the chairman directed.
Major McGregor returned to the door. Then the procession entered. First came A. A. Murphey, the ardent prohibitionist and the former president of the Atlanta Prohibition Club. Seaborn A. Wright followed and behind the nominee came Major Mc Gregor and John Cunningham. The audience broke into applause. Fans and were waved and the hall echoed cheers. Mr. Wright stepped to the speak-er's stand and took a seat beside Mr. Wat-son, who was almost hid from the view of the convention behind the high desk. Mr Watson smiled and reached out his hand which Mr. Wright seized and shook heartily. Judge Hines shook him by the hand and congratulated him. Then in a few words, the chairman presented the nominee. Again there was a demonstratio Mr. Murphey taking a leading part,

Mr. Wright stood erect, his face calm but with the lines strongly marked. He seemed a trifle paler than usual. He wore a linen suit and looked to be the coolest for they had been participating in the work of the convention. The lips of the nominee were tightly compressed during the few words of introduction, and he surveyed the body of men and the galleries with a sweeping glance, while the noise subsided.

Perhaps he was thinking at that moment of the last time he had spoken in that chamber—a little more than four years ago. It was one night, near the end of a state democratic convention.

The Cleveland faction was proposing to take from the congressional districts the right to select delegates to Chicago, and Mr. Hoke Smith was leading the fight and the convention seemed to be about to go with him. Mr. Wright, who was a dele gate from Floyd county, leaped upon a desk and for ten minutes electrified the convention with a protest against the proposed action. The result was that the leveland move was defeated and Mr. Wright was the hero of the occasion Now he was the nominee of the populist party for governor, only twenty-four hours after his announcement over his own signature that he did not belong to any

Did Not Seek the Honor. In spite of what may have been said, he began, in a clear ringing voice that was easily heard in the galleries, as to my seeking this nomination, I wish to call you to witness that I have not sought it. I have seted by my to sought it. I have asked no man to vote for me. On the contrary, I have done all that was in my power to avoid personally making this race. I am no politician. As I grow older, the more I love my home and the dear the more I love my home and the dear ones there, and the more repugnant becomes the idea of breaking any ties. But, gentlemen, there are duties which no true man will shirk. I was a candidate only once in my life. Twenty years ago, when a mere boy, I was a candidate for the legislature. I was elected as an independent democrat. After serving a term I went back to my home, and when my friends railied around me and asked me to run again, I said to them:

AZMON MURPHEY, OF PIKE. The Irrepressible Delegate Before He Loss His Mustache and His Dignity.

candidate for any office until the chief plank in the platform on which I run shall be, 'Down with the liquor shops.'" (Applause.)

plank in the platform on which I run shall be, 'Down with the liquor shops.' " (Applause.)

I am no fanatic on this subject. I have no personal ill-will against the men who are in this business. I am against the system. They are not responsible. But before the bar of their conscience and before the bar of their conscience and before the bar of their God, the men who vote to sustain the infamous traffic will be held responsible. (Applause.)

There are some things which cannot be left unsaid. We are now facing a most remarkable complication of affairs. For years the populists as a party have been ridiculed, denounced, lied about (cries of "That's true!") by a set of ring-tailed democratic politicians. And never until they were driven to the alternative of losing office or adopting your platform did they deign to accept it. It does not lie in their mouths to throw ridicule upon the populists of Georgia. They are estopped. When those men at Chicago threw off the domination of the east and the north and nominated a populist for president, you had the battle whipped (Applause.) They cannot deceive any-body about it except a few howling free silver democrats—a remarkable product of the nineteenth century.

Compares the Platforms.

Compares the Platforms. Compares the Platforms.

The only practical difference between the Chicago and St. Louis platforms is in regard to the railroad question. Yes, there is one other difference, and that is in the personnel of the candidates for vice president, Of all the cowardly animals that God Almighty ever sent to this earth, the worst are the southern democrats who have for thirty years bowed the knee and sold their inheritance to the thugs and corruptionists of Tammany Hail and their associates. (Cheers.)

At Chicago there were some brave southern men, but the same sneaking pusilianlinity that has characterized the democrats in the past caused them to put forward for the vice presidency

a man from the north instead of nominating some of the grand and good men from the south. At St. Louis they had the bravery to do the right thing to nominate a southern man, a Georgian (pointing to Watson as he spoke), a man born and bred on these old red hills about you; a man who loves Georgia as he loves the very wife of his bosom. Are the people of Georgia going to let a few ring-failed politicians of the olden stripe deter them from doing the right and voting for this gallant son of the south?

Tell me that men of the south will hesitate! If we are men, let us stand for southern rights. As in the old days she furnished a Washington and a Jefferson, so she furnishes a Watson now. Don't be afraid of criticism. You are standing on a rock, and they cannot push you off to get on themselves. If they will come up and say, "Brothers, we are for you," let them come in.

You want to lay aside extreme partisanship as much as possible. You want to go before the people and denounce the rule of men unfit to govern. Don't dodge, but make the fight today that is burning in the hearts of the rank and file of the democrats. I have heard it said in Atlanta and in other places than in Georgia the offices of the state are bartered and traded as mere articles of merchandise, And they dare not come before the clitzenry of Georgia and appeal for their support and make a straightout fight. They have ridiculed you in the past, but now they come to you. Now, let them have what they gave you. (Applause.) If they come and will take Watson, invite them in.

Referring to the prohibition feature which is to be the issue in the campaign, Mr. Watson said: "There is one plank in your platform which is as dear to me as the apple of my eye. I have at my home four boys, God bless them, manly little fellows, and I tell you that as the boys of Georgia are going down before this damnable traffic, I do not know but that my boys may be struck. Looking into your faces and remembering that you represent 70,000 farmers in this state, I feel proud to think that I can stand as the representative of those that you represent 70,000 farmers in this state, I feel proud to think that I can stand as the representative of those who are fighting this great barroom evil and feel that behind me are 70,000 farmers of Georgia. Imay misunderstand these men, but I say that these 70,000 men are your natural allies in any great moral contest. You cannot expect help from the democratic politicians. Now is the opportunity to overthrow this traffic which has rained thousands of our brave boys.

We come here with 70,000 voters and say that we are ready to make this fight. Let us clean out this cesspool of politics and establish the reign of purity and honesty in Georgia. (Applause.)

I know not what the result of this campaign may be, but I will never be ashamed of having led the contest for moral government. And when I die the memory of this action of mine will be the happiest one to my sons.

There was applause at the conclusion of the speech, but not so much as at some parts of it. Mr. Wright was congratulated as he turned to leave the stand. Mr. Wat-son beamed. The nominee for governor stepped down to the floor and took a chair. A crowd assembled around him and shook him by the hand. He has a dramatic manner of speaking and excites enthusiasm He is intense and arouses the sympathies of his hearers. And so it was that for half an hour the farmers, many of them in their shirt sleeves, made their way up to the desk and shook his hand. The irre pressible Mr. Murphey acted excitedly all through the speech, waving a paper in the air and cheering

Mr. William C. Sibley Presented. Chairman Hines announced that Messrs John and James Sibley, whom he had previously appointed to induct the nomi-nee for state treasurer into the populist party, had their candidate ready for the initiation. Major Sibley, of Richmond, was accordingly presented. He stated that he was a business man and not given to making speeches. He thanked the conven-tion for the honor which it had conferred upon him and promised that if elected he would administer the office of state treasurer in a businesslike way. Major Sibley was applauded and he retired. About this time Colonel Peek approached

Mr. Wright and congratulated him, whis-pering a few words into his ear. Colonel Peek knows what it is to make a race for governor on the populist ticket himself and The routine business of the convention was resumed. Some one suggested that as Donald Clark had been nominated for attorney general, some one else, should be placed on the electoral ticket from the first district. F. H. Saffold, the alternate, was elected. Reuben K. Walker, of McIntosh, was chosen as the alternate electer.

Parsons, of Milton, Named. Mr. Murphey, of Pike, remembered that there had been no nomination for tary of state and he nominated Dr. J. A. Parsons, of Milton county, the man who is of Tom Watson to accept the nomination for vice president. John Sibley, of Berrien, seconded the nomination. Colonel Carey Thornton placed in nomination J. T. Davenport, of Douglas county, Mr. Magruder, of Pulaski county, proposed the name of Guy Clopton, of Gainesville, and Newt Twitty seconded Clopton's nomination.

This promised the only contest of the convention. There were many seconds of the three nominees and when the vote was about to be taken Messrs. Davenport and Clopton were withdrawn and the nomination of Dr. Parsons was made unanimous. He would have been nominated had it been by vote, as his stroke at the St. Louis convention put him in high favor with the convention.

Mr. Collins, of Mitchell county, was put on the electoral ticket in place of W Smith, nominated for commissioner of agriculture

This practically wound up the business of the convention, but the programme had one more number. That was a speech by Walter B. Hill, of Macon. Major Mc-Gregor moved that Mr. Hill be invited to address the convention, and the motion Mr. Hill was sitting in the gallery. A cry was raised for him to come down to the stand, but he asked if he could not be heard from where he stood.

"Yes, go ahead," was shouted back to

Mr. Hill said that he was sorry that his friend, Dr. Gambrell, was not present to speak for him. He felt like saying as the doctor said at Barnesville: "I was born a democrat and a sinner." (Applause.) Mr. Hill went on to tell how the general conference of his church, the Southern Nietho-dist, at Richmond, eight years ago, had declared that the license system was a sin against society and essentially immoral. Soon after that his party in national convention declared against sumptuary legislation. It was then a question of leaving his church or his party, he stated, and he chore to leave his party. But he could not go to the republican party because it had a plank on prohibition which was con strued two ways. So he voted with the national prohibition party. He said that he did not understand how a man could be two things at the same time. Mr. Hill told the story of the lord bishop of Rochester, who preached the gospel on Sundays and gambled on week days. The lord bishop was known outside the church as John Henry Maitland. One day a curate asked him how he could do that. "Ch," replied the bishop, "on Sundays I breach as the lord bishop of Rochester, out on Mondays I gamble as John Henry

Maitland." "But, my lord, when John Henry Mait-land is in hell for gambling where will the lord bishop or Rochester be?" asked the curate. Continuing, Mr. Hill said to the convention that it had challenged the conscience of the state. He hoped that the ballot would destroy the liquor traffic

"I'm with you on every plank in that platform," he exclaimed, and a demonstration followed. Mr. Murphey confessed that he was a lawyer and quoted the

"God works a wonder now and then. Here lies a lawyer and an honest man.' A widow once appropriated this epitaph for her deceased husband. A stranger passing the grave read the lines and exclaimed that he could not understand how they came to bury two men in the same grave. This made a big laugh. Mr. Hill claimed that he was an honest man as well as a lawyer. He called for a fair ballot and an honest count. He declared

2. Civilization, to say nothing of religion, has entered up judgment of condemnation against barrooms. The public conscience revolts at the license system, which fosters the saloon and generates its manifold evils, in consideration of revenue that pays less than a tithe of the public burdens it entails. It is non-American, monopolistic and essentially immoral. We therefore, declare for an anti-barroom law which shall make secure the local prohibition already obtained, abolish the beverage sale of intoxicating liquors, and provide for the sale for other purposes under public control.

3. The abolition of the present convict lease system which prostitutes to the greed of private avarice the state's sovereign rights to punish her citizens for violation of law. We believe that the state herself should keep possession of her prisoners and should employ them upon the public roads and not allow them brought in competition with free labor, and that reformatories be established for juvenile criminals.

4. We declare in favor of improving and extending the public school system to the end that all our people can receive a good common school education. We favor the furnishing of primary school books by the state to avoid the burdens put upon our people by the frequent changes of text books. We also favor the payment of teachers monthly.

5. We emphatically condemn the practice, of late becoming so prevalent, of public officers accepting free passes from railroad corporations and franks from telegraph and express companies We intend this condemnation to apply to the executive, legislative and judicial branches of our national and state government.

We condemn lynching and demand of our public servants the rigid enforcement of our laws against this barbarous practice.

7. We demand that all public officers be elected by the people. We denounce the present system of electing judges and solicitor generals by the legislature. It fosters rings and cliques and enables corrupt politicians, not only to trade and barter political office, but drags the sacred ermine of the judiciary in the mud and filth of partisan politics. The price of office in Georgia under democratic rule is obedience to party masters.

S. We denounce the present fee system and demand that all public officials, where practicable, be placed upon salaries. We declare for a free ballot and a fair count and pledge curselves to the enactment of laws securing this to every legal voter.

that he was going to be a live corpse be tween this and October. He denounced politicians and told a familiar story which caught the crowd, and when he closed he was heartily applauded. Mr. Hill was another convert and the convention made demonstration over him.

The hat was passed around for contributions toward the expenses of the convenon, the tabernacle and Thursday night's meeting. A pint of quarters, dimes and dollars and pennies was contributed and then John Cunningham moved an adjournment. The motion was carried with a whoop and the delegates dispersed.

SOMETHING OF SEAB WRIGHT Interesting Sketch of the Man Chosen To Lead the Popu-

able men in the state. He has been a noted character before the public for many years. A stanch prohibitionist, he has fought the sale of liquor in every shape and on every occasion that has presented itself. He is a son of the late Judge Augustus R. Wright, who was distinguished for his independent spirit, and in this the son has showed himself a veritable chip from the old block. Judge Wright all of his life held to the principle that no man nor set of men could dictate to him to the extent of causing him to do or vote for what he thought was wrong. He was a unique character in the history of the state, and with all of his brilliance and all of his eloquence stood forth pre-eminently as champion of independent thought.

His record is too well known to Georgians to make necessary any account of his labor for his country. Minor offices he many times held, and when only twentynine years old was elected judge of the superior court of the Cherokee circuit. Then he was sent to congress from the fifth district, and his matchless eloquence won for him a national reputation.

Although opposed to secession, he was loyal to his native state, and was first chosen a member of the confederate congress and was afterwards called to com-mand a legion of troops. Again he was effected to congress, which position he finally resigned, and during the rest of the war spent the time in Richmond, va., serving his country. Since the war he was known as one of the boldest, most aggressive independent thinkers to be found in the state. Alawys popular, always commanding the respect of the people, he did what he thought was right and served his country

Seaborn Wright is a brilliant, highlyeducated lawyer and an orator wh quence is surpassed by few men in the land today. ne inherited from his father that boldness and aggressiveness which characterize him today and which allow him to hold his wide popularity among the people and at the same time to be known to them as thoroughly independent in all of his actions. Mr. Wright has been through some of the hardest fought campaigns of the sev enth district, and his generous chivalry, breadth of character and brilliant intel-lect, together with his wonderful gift of oratory, have distinguished him at the bar as a successful advocate, He was born in Floyd county November 29, 1856; graduated with distinction at Mercer university in 1878, and was commence-ment orator of his class. In 1879 he was admitted to the bar in Floyd superior court, having studied law with his father, and in his twenty-first year, as soon as he was eligible, he ted to the Georgia legislature as an in-endent over the strongest candidate dependent over the strongest candidate the democratic party could put out. In 1874, when but eighteen years of age, he espoused the cause of Dr. William H. Felton in the independent race of the latter for congress, and from that time till the present he has declined to ally himself with any political party, though leaning toward the populists for the last few Mr. Wright married Miss Annie E over by the members of the committee and it was decided to leave to Mr. Wright and Mr. Cunningham the selection of a campaign committee. This committee will probably be composed of six or eight members. It will be small and will have the responsibility of conducting the campaign.

After the committee adjourned there was nore talk of fusion in the event the democrats desire it, and it was suggested by some delegates that perhaps it would be possible to fuse in the south and the west and let Sewall run in the east. The populists have no strength in the north. They declared that they wanted to see Bryan elected and some populists said that they would be willing to take their chances on Watson capturing a majority of the electoral votes.

The committee was authorized by the convention to take down seven electors in the event of Sewall's withdrawal, but it was doubted if fusion could be arranged on any other terms.

'My Fellow Countrymen—I am very sorry that mg good friend, Dr. Gambrell, is not present to speak for the friends of the anti-barroom bill.

Like him, as I once heard him say, "I was born a democrat and a sinner."

The fact that in this convention you call each other "brothers", and that you dwell together in such wonderful unity of purpose, tempts me to "give in a little of my experience."

In May, 1888, I had the honor to be sent to the general conference of the church of which I am a member. That conference, which is the highest law-making body in the church, unanimously adopted this strong declaration:

"The license system is a sin against society; its essential immorality cannot be affected by the question whether that license be high or low."

The very next month the democratic party, of which I was then also a member, met in convention at St. Louis, and under the misleading phrase of denouncing "sumptuary laws' and affirming the previous utterances of the party on that subject, it pledged itself to uphold and maintain the very system which the Methodist general conference had declared to be a sin against the community and to be essentially immoral.

Now, I had to quit either that church or that party.

I do not pretend to fudge the conduct of any one else who sees that situation differently. As good men as I can ever hope to be saw their duty otherwise, but to me the alternative of quitting the one or the other was unmistakably plash and inevitable. I could not see how I could be a democratic prohibition methodist and an anti-prohibition Methodist in religion, or a democratic Methodist in religion or a democratic 'Sound Money" Delegate to Indianap olis Not Known in Atlanta Among the Goldbug Ranks.

Who is Ballard, the representative Georgia at the sound money conference in Indianapolis held Thursday?

Inquiry in the city brings no answer, and the sound money adherents here never heard of Ballard before he played his conspicuous part before the committee in Indianapolis. No one in the city knows him not even Banker T. B. Neal, who had been selected a delegate from this state.

When Mr. Neal discovered that it would be impossible for him to attend the meeting of the committee in Indianapolis he anthorized Mr. Samuel W. Burdett, of this city, to represent him. But the telegrams say Ballard, of Atlanta, not Burdett. Indianapolis, was the Georgian who spoke in favor of a third ticket. Who is Ballard, the representative

"I HAVE BUN ENOUGH." HE SAYS Believes That There Are Many Others Who Are Strong Republican Gubernatorial Timber.

Chattanooga, Tenn., August 7 .- (Special.) H. Clay Evans has at last acknowledged that he doesn't want to make the race for governor, as has been frequently intimated in these dispatches. Mr. Evans finds that his martyrdom won't stand him in his stead this year, and he wants some other man to engage in that business. He appears very mysterious and declines to give his

TELEGRAMS CAUSE A SENSATION If They Are Sent Some Texas Populists

May Kick Out of Traces. Galveston, Tex., August 7 .- A sensation as sprung in the populist state convention is morning when the committee appointed to formulate telegrams in answer to messages of greeting from other populist onventions reported. The committee was composed of Barnett Gibbs, who made the speech nominating Kearby: "Stump" Ashnominee for lieutenant governor, and Harry Tracy, editor of The Southern Mertelegrams they brought in for the approval of the convention were:

Replying to the Louisiana convention, "Texas provides a full electoral ticket and declares for Bryan and Watson." Replying to Kansas convention, "Texas returns greetings; will put a middle of the road ticket in the field." Replying to the Georgia convention and the middle of the road ticket."

"Texas unanimously indorses Tom Watson

The telegrams were received with cheers.
C. H. Jenkins, chairman of the platform mittee, addressed the convention, oppos ing the sending of the telegrams, saying they would be firebrands which would re sult in the defeat of populism. He said he was a middle of the road man at St but bowed to the will of that ion. Bryan had not been officially notified of his nomination, and this action should be taken, populists could truthfully be accused of insincerity in its desire or reform.

It looked as if Jenkins had the convention with him, but when the point of order was made that nominations were the order of business, the convention refused, by a big majority, to suspend the rules and allow him to continue his speech

CLOUDBURSTS IN INDIANA.

Damage Done by Sudden Storms in the Whitewater Section. Richmond, Ind., August 7.-Three cloudursts in succession occurred in this sec-

The Richmond electric light works and paper mill are both flooded. Damage to the lowlands is tremendous, many horses and cattle being drowned. Two lives are reported lost, but not yet verified. The nearby town of Hagerstown suffered very heavy loss, the fair grounds being three feet under water and many head of fine stock drowned. The fair was to have had its greatest day today. Reports received last night from all portions of the county show that much more damage was done than at first reported. The total rainfall for twentyfour hours ending at 11 o'clock last night is five inches, which is unprecedented.

LOUISIANA NEGROES FOR SILVER Organization of a Bimetallic League by Them.

New Orleans, La., August 7 .- (Special.)-The Afro-American Bimetallic League has een organized here with ex-Senator T. B amps as president; George Washington, itor of The St. Charles Advocate, as ice president, and a committee composed of leading negroes. The movement is composed entirely of negroes and organized by negroes. Stamps, who went to the Chicago onvention, came back a stalwart free silver man and has been trying to organize the negroes on that line, and has finally succeeded. His proposition is that free silver will not only benefit the colored race, but that the decision of the negroes on the financial question will tend to wipe out the race line and prevent further friction between the whites and negroes.

An address has been printed and distrib-uted through the state, declaring that the solidity of the negroes's vote had solidified all the white element against it, and that the time for the decision of the negro vote was now most auspicious.

The colored politicians of New Orleans seem to have taken to free silver with great enthusiasm. The league will organize itself thoroughly in Louis ana first and after this is done it expects to extend the organization to the other southern states.

At the door he was met by Morris with a double-barreled gun, who told him to 'burn wind.' Wassman seeing that the negro meant what he said left hurriedly, the negro chasing him for several blocks. Morris was arrested later and jailed.

Declines the Nomination of the Neal Committee of Forty.

BUSINESS WITH THE CITY Mr. Sciple Says He Has No Time To

Be a Councilman-Mass Meeting

Monday Night.

Mr. George W. Sciple, of the third ward. who was nominated by the Neal committee of forty to represent his ward on that ticket, has sent his declination of the honor in a letter to Captain Neal. The letter is regarded as personal to the committee of forty by Captain Neal and he had declined o make public the contents until the communication has been formally presented to the committee.

Mr. Sciple retires from the race principally because he is interested in certain contracts with the city and the city charter prevents any person so connected with the municipal government from making a contract with the city. If elected a councilman he would have to cancel his contract with the city to furnish cement and pipe. which his firm has been furnishing for sev eral years. And aside from that, Mr. Sciple does not desire to get mixed up in politics.

Mr. Sciple said yesterday that he could not afford to lose the time from his business that would be necessary in the event that he should be elected and that he only agreed to accept the place after the committee had ballotted many times without result. His friends urged him to accept the nomination and he reluctantly agreed to do so, but has now decided to withdraw from the race.

Captain Neal stated last night that he had been requested to call a meeting of the committee of forty to fill the vacancy, but that it had been decided to postpone the matter until after the mass meeting Monday night.

"The mass meeting may put out a man who is satisfactory to us," said Mr. Neal, "in which case it will not be necessary to name another man from the third ward. If the candidate named is not satisfactory I shall call a meeting of the committee for Tuesday evening to select a successor to Mr. Sciple.

Mr. Steve Johnson's friends are actively at work to secure for him the nomination of the Neal committee. He was a prominent candidate when Mr. Sciple was selected and t may be that he will be nominated if the

Stockholders Encouraged

The interview with Mr. Charles A. Collier in The Constitution this morning, in which that gentleman expressed hopeful views on the Eagle and Phenix situation, was read with gratification here. The condition of the company is really much more encouraging than many of the stockholders anticipated.

Before the careful and business-like investigation of the receivers, considerable uncertainty and confusion naturally existed as to the exact condition of the company. Now this cleared up, to a great extent, however, and with the cold figures before them, showing that they have the control of the co before them, showing that the financial condition of the corporation is better than was generally supposed, the stockholders of this magnificent property are inclined to feel considerably encouraged.

DUNCAN AND EVANS WRANGLE Meeting, Occurred Yesterday at the Home of the Former.

Police Are Becoming Prominent Factors in the Politics of the Palmetto People.

Newberry, S. C., August 7 .- (Special.)-The campaign party today was at the home of Duncan, the candidate for the senate who has been leading the fight against Governor Evans. It was generally understood that Evans's friends had been preparing to howl Duncan down here. When the meeting was called to order Chairman Cunningham said threats had been made that a certain candidate would not be allowed to speak. He and the city authorities had determined that the can didate should speak. They were prepared o maintain order, and the first man starting a row would be locked up. There was on the stand the chief of police, with his whole force, and eight extra men were scattered in the crowd. There were mer here from an adjoining courty prepared raise a racket, but the show of force subdued them. General Earle was the first senatorial candidate to speak. He digressed from his usual speech on national affairs and expressed himself on the dispensary. Fea tures of the law he advocated, such as the early clesing, but he was shocked at the idea of the state selling liquor for profit, that profit to go to the public schools. He seemed to favor the plan of Harrison, candidate for governor, who wishes each county to control its own dispensary. General Earle considered the power given the governor by dispensary patronage as regugnant to a democratic government The dispensary had simply evolved into a political machine, used for the benefit of certain officials. He regretted that the new constitution had made such provision that an illiterate confederate soluter, without property, was disfranchised. He was informed by a candidate from Spartanburg that committees in that county had seen that every white democrat who had sense to know how he was going to vcte had been registered, whether he could read or not. Mr. R. Cooper, candidate for lieutenant governor, said county no man was disqualified because of illiteracy. Recently a candidate for coroner had applied for registration. He could not read and was asked if he could explain the constitution.

"Yes," said he; "it's the thing to forever keep the negro from getting control of this country." He was immediately registered, said Mr.

Cooper. Governor Evans said he was too well known in this couny for the people to believe the insinuations about his charac-ter, and he would not refer to them. He devoted his time to a discussion of the demand of the alliance, which, he said, had culminated in the Chicago platform, which he had written. A man in the crowd said he did not beleve Evans had written that platform. The governor said he did not care a what his enemies believed. demagogue, and he was proud of being a demagogue. Duncan made one of his most vehement in Virginia. Roanoke, Va., August 7.—The boiler of Layman's canning factory, at Troutville, twelve miles north of here, exploded this afternoon, instantly killing two employes and wounding several others. The dead men are A. F. Shannon and Palmer Lin-kenhoker. The latter's head was blown completely off. Fragments of the boiler vere thrown 300 yards by the force of the explosion. STATE PRESS COMMENT.

Dalton Citizen: Mr. Watson has thrown away the opportunity of a lifetime. If he had only refused the vice presidential nomination and came squarely out for Bryan, Sewall and the democratic party, he could have gone to congress from the tenth and stood an enviable chance for speaker of the next house of congress. It now appears that he prefers the emoluments of a high office to the success of the principles he has so ardently advocated. Come down, Mr. Watson; it ain't too late. Meriwether Vindicator: If all the silver men throughout the country can be brought to unite on one electoral ticket, McKinley's defeat becomes an assured fact. A genuine Bryan silver love feast is all that is reeded to bring all the varying cohorts together. Let patriotism, genuine love of country, rule the hour and we will whip the fight certain.

Fort Valley Leader: A straight, fre-silver democratic fight is what we want and is what will insure success to the par-ty. Bryan and Sewall is the straight, fre-silver democratic ticket, and the ticket that will insure success. Barnesville Gazette: Every democrat should now get fully aroused for the success of the tickets that have been named by the party, and active work put into the campaign.

Fort Valley Leader: The democratic clans are assembling for the fight; and its is going to be one of the stubbornest in years.

Thomasville Times: The pops think they can win on the dispensary plan. They can't do it. Georgia does not want to be Tillmanized.

the democratic party and stayed in the Methodist church. Never have I taken a step in life which the approval of conscience has so richly rewarded.

Well, where was I to go? I have read of "a man without a country;" I was a man without a party. 'I DARE YOU," SAID EARLE, "I DARE YOU."

A Republican Invitation.

A Republican Invitation.

The republican party held out its invitation to those of my convictions to join its ranks. That invitation was couched in these words in its platform (and, by the way, the same words, in substance, occur in its platform this year): "We cordially sympathize with all wise and well directed efforts for the promotion of temperance and morality."

But I saw at once that this phrase needed construction, and, in point of fact, that it was being contrued to mean two exactly opposite things—which is, in fact, the usual intention of political platform makers. For instance, the backbone of the republican party in the north, west and east is the Methodist church of those sections. Without its vote that party could not carry a single state. That church has declared "the liquor traffic can never be legalized without sin, and total prohibition of that traffic is the duty of civil government." Now, a republican manager would go to a preachers' meeting and say, "Dear brethren, I hope you qre all with us in this campaign." They would ask, "What is the position of the party as to prohibition?" "Plain enough." says the manager. "It favors 'all wise and well directed effort to promote temperance and morality." Is not prohibition a wise and well directed effort to promote temperance and morality. Is not prohibition a wise and well directed effort to promote temperance and morality." Is not prohibition a wise and well directed effort to promote temperance and morality. "Is not prohibition a wise and well directed effort to promote temperance and morality." Is not prohibition a wise and well directed effort to promote temperance and morality. "Is not prohibition a wise and well directed effort to promote temperance and morality." Wery well," replies the manager, "we are for it; that is exactly where we stand." He then hurries off to a caucus of saloon keepers and says, "Boys, of course you are with us in this where we stand." He then hurries off to a caucus of saloon keepers and says, "Boys, of course rou are with us in this campaign." "But how does the party stand on prohibition?" "Plafin enough; it says that is favors 'all wise and well directed efforts for the promotion of temperance and morality." Do you think that a fanatical prohibition law is a wise and well directed effort for the promotion of temperance and morality."
"Why, certainly not." is the unanimous chorus of replies, "Well, then," says the manager, "we are against it; that is exactly where we stand."

Cross-Eved Statesmanship.

Cross-Eyed Statesmanship. This cross-eyed statesmanship, which looks with one eye at the church and the other eye at the saloon, reminds me of Bob Taylor's story. An old German had a son whose future he was anxious to forecast. He placed upon a table in a room a Bible and a bottle of whisky and contrived to have his son table in a room a Bible and a bottle of whisky and contrived to have his son go in. He stood behind a curtain to watch the result. He said to himself, "If mine boy dakes de Bible, he will be a breacher; if he dakes de whisky, he will be a sport." The boy came in, put the Bible in one pocket and the bottle of whisky in the other. "Mine Gott," exclaimed the old man, "he is going to be a bolitican."

A prohibitionist then could not afford to leave the democratic party on ac-

do was to join that little Gideon's band of national party prohibitionists, who every four years, without hope of electing their candidates, had stood up to be counted and have polled their half-million votes in the hope that they might elect their issue into national attention and prominence and either develop into a great and powerful party or else force some other great and powerful party to espouse their principle. ciple.

Consistency will require, of course, Consistency will require, of course, that in national politics I shall continue to act with this party, certainly so long as no other party in its national platform indorses the principle of prohibition. The platform of this national control of the principle of prohibition of the platform of this national control of the platform of the property of the property of the property of the platform of

But in state politics I can say without irreverence that I thank God I am no longer a man without a party. I can stand with both feet upon every plank of the platform which embodies your issues in state politics.
As/I kee it, the main issues are:
1. Reform in the election laws.
Old Ben Johnson wrote this epitaph upon a lawyer: apon a lawyer:
'God works a wonder now and then; "God works a wonder now and then;
Here lies a lawyer and an honest man."
Now, I admit that I am a lawyer, and I claim to be an honest man (as I believe most lawyers are), and I will stand upon the proposition that there is not an honest man in Georgia that does not favor a free ballot and a fair count of its citizens' votes.

2. The termination of the convict leases and the estiblishment of a juvenile reformatory.

nile reformatory.

I do not think that I have any maudlin sympathy with the criminal, but I will stand upon the proposition that there is no man in Georgia with a human heart who ought to oppose you on this part of your platform.

3. The anti-barreom plank.

This convention, without any dickering or trade, without making or requiring any promises, without asking anybody to act or assume to act for others, has indorsed, substantially, the anti-barroom bill, which for two years past has been so prominent before the people of the state, which has been petitioned for by the signatures of 75,000 citizens—indorsed by nearly every religious convention or assembly of the Baptist and Methodist churches which have met since the bill was framed and practically agreed upon as the focus for the temperance sentiment of the state, and by the utterances of ministers and practically agreed upon as the rocus for the temperance sentiment of the state, and by the utterances of ministers and members of the other churches of the state, by numerous grand juries all over the state, and by instructions given by the people to their representatives in various counties to support this measure, and which only lacked a few votes of securing a constitutional majority in the last legislature. It is not the South Carolina dispensary system. Only ignorance or malevolence could so represent it. The bill simply destroys the sale of liquor in barrooms for beverage purposes, preserves the local prohibition already secured and in these counties/where saloons now exist provides that intoxicating liquors may be sold for other than beverage purposes under public control upon petition of a majority of voters to that effect.

A Great Reform.

A Great Reform.

Believe me, Mr. President and gentlemen of this convention, in indorsing an anti-barroom law having these main features you have taken up a great reform. This prohibition movement is one of the signs of the times; it is a movement for the suppression by law of the public evils of the license system. It is at once a financial protest against waste of the nation's wealth and against the imposition of public burdens of taxation entailed by the liquor traffic, burdens the cost of which, as your platform says, the revenue received from the traffic does not pay a tithe. It is a political revolt against the odious domination of the saloon in politics and the corruption which its evil ascendency generates. It is a moral indictment against the propagation of intemperance, vice, lawlessness and crime. I say propagation becease the great point of the movement is that under the license system the saloon does not minister to a demand which is moral and necessary in its extent, but that by its persecuting opportunity and in its excessive expansion and by its social allurements and its treating usages it creates a patronage of drunkards; it fosters, intensifies and multiplies tendencies to intemperance; it recruits the ranks of its ruined devotees from the young of every rising generation and renders the reformation Believe me, Mr. President and gentle of even its struggling victims practically hopeless. The saloon is not a necessary institu-tion. It is a chartered factory where drunkards are made. The drinking habits which it creates deteriorates the habits which it creates deteriorates the fibre and lowers the moral character and destroy the manhood and the will power of thousands of men who have never reeled upon the streets or beaten their wives. As the brilliant Emory Stoors, of Chicago, said: "The saloons are the Sunday schools of crime."

Gentlemen, I have no word of reproach for the men who are engaged in this traffic: they hold the license of the state of Georgia; it takes two to make a bargain; how can we look with scorn upon the "rumseller" who has merely bought the license which we, the people of the state of Georgia, have sold him? Is it not just as respectable for him to buy the license and to prosecute his dangerous and destructive business, as it is for the state to sell that license? Indeed, is not the part which the state plays the worst of the two, for if the state or the municipality did not first offer the license for sale, the rumseller could not purchase it?

Licenses the Bad Feature.

Licenses the Bad Feature. Your platform, gentlemen, is not a warfare upon the business of the saloon keeper; the business which you have declared you want to destroy is the business which the state and the people, of the state are now engaged in—declared your declared the state and the perbusiness which the state are now engaged inple of the state are now engaged inthe business of selling licenses to rumsellers. All that we have to do is to go out of the license-issuing business ourselves—to quit our part of the business. go out of the license-issuing business ourselves—to quit our part of the business.

No, I repeat, that I have no word of reproach for the men as individuals who are engaged in the liquor traffic. There is not one of them that is not better than his business. There is not one of them that is not better than his business. There is not one of them that would be in it but for the money that is in it, for the cold sleet of the world's hostile opinion beats steadily in the face of every man who is engaged in the traffic—whether he be the millionaire brewer or distiller or the saloon keeper himself. But I do invoke we speedy destruction by the ballots of all good citizens of that fearful business that thrives only upon the sins and sorrows and sufferings of our fellow-men, and which measures its princely profits in proportion to the misery and ruin it creates.

And I do know that he who will storthe waste of the $2,000,000,000 which a nually are sunk in intoxicating drinks will be the greatest financier of the century; that he who will strike out of local, state and national politics the debasing and corrupting mastery of the saloon, the brewers' congress and the whisky trust, will be the greatest statesmen of the age; that he who will stop the quivering anguish of the hearts of women—wrung every time a man crosses the threshold of the barroom—and dry the fountain which sends blinding tears down the faces of orphans, will be the greatest benefactor of this or any other time.

Victory for the Cause.

Victory for the Cause. And I believe that this cause will win. The election in Spalding last year, the recent election in Dodge and the triumphant result in Morgan county are sufficient straws showing that there is gathering up a cyclone of almighty wrath which will unroof every barroom in this land and purify with its cleansing ozone the Aegean stables of the nation's public life.

It has been well known that in times past conscientious prohibitionists have It has been well known that in times past conscientious prohibitionists have remained in the democratic party for the sake of issues which seemed to them to be immediately paramount to the temperance question. But surely that time has now passed since upon national issues the platforms of the democratic and people's party are substantially the same. In such case, why, yea, why, indeed, will not the friends of the anti-barroom bill throughout the state vote in the state election for that party which has had the courage and righteousness to indores it?

the courage and righteousies of a dorse it?

And our banner is in the hands of a superb leader—a man "without fear and without reproach"—stainless in character, pure in life, devoted in principle, gifted in brain, safe in judgment, magnetic in eloquence, and who will bring back by his magnificent oratory into this campaign the best traditions into this campaign the best tradition of the grand old days of Georgia's public life—a splendid service in a need

If the—a splendid service in a needy time!

As for myself I can only say this: A democratic paper has said that I was in too bad health even to accept the nomination of attorney general. It was singular, if that be so, that I have not heard of it myself. I believe that I do as much work as any other law-yer in the state. But I promise these political doctors of my case that I shall be a lively corpse, if God spares my life, between now and October; and that my voice shall be lifted up in behalf of the state issues in the platform of the people's party all over Georgia—from its southern border, "where the wind that grand old harper smites his thunder harp of pines," to where, on its northern line, the "beautiful blue waves of the mountains are lifted up in the stiliness of God's perpetual mercy."

In or encouragement to the nomination of another state they captured all of them, it would be seen that he voted against Mr. Bryan and for Mr. Morton, and that he, personally, deserved no credit in the ion, which has set the populist party on the road to the support of its principles.

Not only did Congressman Howard work and vote against Mr. Bryan, but his language in public and private speech was of the most vindictive and abusive character. On the first day of the convention, after the regular body had adjourned, and a call was made for the middle-of-the-road men to remain and discuss the situation, the first speaker was Congressman Howard. In speech then delivered he went beyond all reason and fact. He charged the demoracy of the south, which means the cople of the south, with assassination, ncendiarism, terrorism, and such other onduct, and appealed to the delegates rom the west and north to "save our vomen and children." The dastardly inference which lay in this appeal was one only too well understood. This char cter of campaign Congressman Howard oursued during his entire stay in St. ouis. It was noticeable that while he harged unspeakable crimes against the people of his own section before an asemblage, not once during the enire period of the convention did a vestern man get up and attack his own mmunity, although these men must have had their share of local bickerings and disprios.

The Constitution, understands trong zeal which moves the mass of the populist party in calling for political redress, and it sympathizes with them in their desire for a return of prosperity; but when men like Congressman Howard, who seem to have no bridles on their tongues, go abroad, making statethe social and political life of the south, it is time that they should be called to a

Talking About the Force Bill.

The Philadelphia Record, which laims to be a democratic newspaper, in recent issue has this to say:

The white citizens of the southern states objected rightfully and seriously to the passage of a force bill, the object of which was to bring about obnexious federal regulation of the elections They escaped that infliction through the persistent and courageous opposi-tion of the northern democrats. It would be a poor requital for such an important service for them to now assist the lemocratic party, in securing the passage of a force bill which would change the monetary standard, break down pub-lic and private credit and plunge the people into a condition of frightful disaster and panic.

The implied threat in the sentence above has too long been held over the south. The truth is that the waving of he bloody shirt was not always a republican act. It was something that vas wisely and discreetly managed by the money kings of the north by which o whip into line enough votes to enable hem to carry on their nefarious schemes, while they were apparently protecting social order in the south.

If The Philadelphia Record is really democratic paper, and if Mr. Singerl s really wedded to democratic princi ples, he must know that opposition to any force bill is just as democratic in Pennsylvania as it would be in Georbarometer by which the political at- gia, and the patriot in Pennsylvania does no more than what he ought to do and is entitled to no thanks from Georgia or any other state for merely doing his duty. It is the plain The principal shops of the Baltimore and | duty of honest men to do right for the Ohio railroad, one of the most extensive sake of right and not for the benefit others. It would seem from the editorials from newspapers akin to The Record, that politics with them is like a game at cards, to be played with no principle beneath, with no patriotism in of the single gold standard and therefore | spiring it, simply looking out for win-

Even though it may cost him the re sponsible position which he now occupies, Mr. Peters will boldly advocate free coinage. If it comes to the worst, he can at least declare his fidelity to principle by the sacrifice which he is willing to make in its behalf.

In addition to the office which he holds, as chairman of the New York Consolidated Exchange, Mr. Peters is also chairman of the general committee of Tammany hall. He is therefore one of the most conspicuous democrats in New York city and his personality will be a strong factor in the campaign.

Having made a thorough study of the noney question, Mr. Peters is neither a adden nor a superficial convert. He knows whereof he speaks when he declares that national prosperity is simply impossible under the single gold standard and that a radical change in the financial policy of the government is imperatively needed.

Mr. Peters states that he began the study of the money question in 1885. Everything that he could get his hands on he read eagerly, and then laid it aside for subsequent perusal. Having come to a definite conclusion on the money question, after such a prolonged and earnest eourse of study, he could no more re verse the decision at which he had arrived than he could change the structure of his mind. To require him to surrender his views at this late day was something morally and intellectually im-

In a recent interview which appeared in The New York Journal, Mr. Peters states his position on the money question in a nutshell. Referring to the alleged depreciation of silver, he says:

I do not think that any one who will study the matter carefully and impar-tially will fall to admit that the so-called "fall" in silver 's attributable to discriminating legislation.

In 1816 England demonetized silver, but as the United States, Germany, France and the Latin Union did not, the price of silver was not affected. In 1873 this country closed its mints to the free coin-age of silver, and Germany did the same five months later. Then silver, as measured by gold, fell. In other words gold rose. France and the Latin Union followed just eleven months after the United States, and by the end of 1874 silver had fallen still further. Legislation against silver caused silver to fall tion against silver caused silver to 35 per cent by the close of 1893. England closed the mints of India, silver went down to 50 per cent. All this

Not only that, but I am convinced that if silver is put back where it was it would return, soo later, to its right place and right value, and one could buy the gold one needed without giving out so much more silver

I am informed by the gold standard papers that there is bitter opposition to me on the exchange. I am on the win-ning side this year, and I anticipate that it will largely die out after November. Every one who has studied the money question with the honest purpose in view of finding out the truth, and not in the selfish light of personal interest. must recognize the wisdom contained in this brief explanation. It is clear, simple and conclusive." Even a child can appreciate its logic. Feeling as he does that our present financial condition is largely, if not altogether, the result of the single gold standard and that every patriotic American citizen should em ploy his vote and influence to bring about a change in the policy of the government, he can do no less than oppose his business associates who happen to differ with him and do all in his power to promote the success of the democratic ticket. Referring to the bitter personal epi thets which the organs of the money power have employed in the absence o respectable argument, Mr. Peters has I do not wish to criticize the cam-

As to Secretary Carlisle.

To Secretary Carlisle must be given the honor of having given a republican governor to Kentucky. During the campaign preceding that election, Mr. Carlisle felt it incumbent upon himself to deliver a series of speeches in Kentucky. These speeches were remarkable for the fact that standing before audiences which had listened o him speaking for the free and unlim ed coinage of silver, he denied that he had ever done so, and went on to defend his vote of 1878 as not having been intended for that purpose. The misfortune about Mr. Carlisle is that he ha spoken too much for his words to be orgotten, and he has written too much which not even denials from him can wipe out.

The Constitution is in receipt of etter written by Mr. Carlisle to Hon. W. M. Smith, of Mayfield, Ky. Mr. Carisle had just taken his seat as a senator from Kentucky, having been elected to that place to fill a vacancy made by the death of Hon, J. B. Beck. Mr. Smith was a member of the legislature that had elected him, and voted for him. Some of Mr. Smith's constituents were displeased at some action of Senator Carlisle's during the financial legislation, the outcome of which was the Sherman law of 1890. In order to set this matter right, Mr. Smith wrote to Mr. Carlisle and the letter following is

Washington, D. C., June 25, 1890.—Hon, W. M. Smith, Mayfield, Ky.—Dear Sir: Your favor of the 13th just received. Every democrat in the senate voted against the silver bill, as it was finally amended than the existing law.

If the Farmers' Alliance of Graves county believe that this republican measure, which substantially stops the coinage of the silver dollar after one year, is better than the democratic law of 1878, they are, of course, entitled to their opinion, but I do not agree with them. When the original house bill was under consideration in the senate I voted to amend it so as to provide for the free and unlimited coinage of the silver dollar, and the amendment was adopted. lar, and the amendment was adopted. The house, however, refused to agree to The house, however, retused this amendment, and then a conf this amendment, and then a conf committee was appointed, which struck but free coinage entirely, and this is the oill I voted against. I send you by mail all three of the bills. bills. Very truly, JOHN G. CARLISLE.

From the above it can be Secretary Carlisle was not only in favor of the free coinage of silver, but he went to great lengths to see that the people had the article that they wished for "I voted," said he, "against the bill so as to provide for the free and unlimited coinage of the silver dollar." The conference committee bill which he voted against struck out free coinage entirely. And this bill," writes Mr. Carlisle, "is the one I voted against."

Perhaps a more glaring instance of political obliquity has never been seen. This man who up to the year 1892 stood as the tribune of the people, voicing their of a cabinet office, goes back on the convictions of a lifetime, betrays the trust of a confiding people and consorts with those whose intents are to squeeze the people and to deprive them of their liberties. The audacity which it requires for a man to thus stand up and repu diate every principle which he had advocated is, something beyond understanding.

After the 4th of next March, however, Mr. Carlisle will have plenty of time for consideration and study. During the intervals between his defense of the whisky trust he may study and ponder over what might have been had he remained true to his convictions.

A scramble for the prize immediately ensued, in which the jar was broken into small bits. Nevertheless a fair division was made and each laborer had the satisfaction of taking home a snug little pile. Subsequently a large number of these coins were secured for the crown and many rare and curious specimens were added to the national colection. The bulk of the coins were silver pennies of the reign of Edward the Confessor, and were in a remarkable state as fresh as though just issued from the

In ancient times the custom prevailed in England of placing hour glasses in coffins. A writer in 1718 says that in passing through one of the English church vards he stopped to see a graye digger yards he stopped to see a grave digger at work. A coffin was soon exposed, the wood of which was rotten and fell to pieces. In clearing away the rotten pieces an hour glass was discovered just o the left side of the skull. The writer subsequently ascertained from some of his antiquarian friends that what he had seen was the proof of an ancient custom in England. Until lately in parts of Sweden a man's pipe, tobacco pouch, a few pieces of silver coin were buried. In other parts of the world similar customs have at some time or other prevailed.

Action of Yesterday's Convention Shows Distinctive Where He Stands --- Is Moving To Have Sewall Retired.

Looming high and clear above the ac- the skirmishes and contentions, the tion of yesterday's convention is the settled policy of Thomas E. Watson in regard to the national democracy.

There will be no fusion with democrats save under the condition that Arthur Sewall is withdrawn. That is positive. That is final. Watson's convention has said it. It was Watson's will. It represents his position absolutely. He told no man save his trusted lieuterants what course would pursue. He wisely waited for convention to mold into convention action he policy that he himself outlined. Watson himself has not broken silence may withdraw. Watson will continue. Sewall continuing, Bryan and Watson electoral tickets will be put out in every state where the populist organization can be stirred into action. So far as Watson can control it, fusion electoral tickets will be put out in no state. His policy, as indicated by the unanimous action of his convention yesterday-action taken while Watson looked on smilingly-will be absolute, unalterable, uncompromisingly opposed to fusion. There can be no fusion, with the conof Watson, save alone upon the condition that Sewall gets out of the way entirely. Watson hopes to make the democrats see that Sewall's retirement is necessary to secure populist aid. He believes that when the firm, unyielding policy of his party is made clear, Sewall will be taken

'A thought sweet to the Watson heart is the thought of making the coming great race with Bryan, with no Sewall and no Maine in the way. He would dearly love it. It would more nearly satisfy the bounding ambition of the man than any other thing even remotely possible.

The best Watson hopes for is the tirement of Sewall. The thing he fears worst is the naming of a populist candidate for president. Whatever happens, Sewall or no Sewall, fusion or no fusion, declination or acceptance of the populist nomination by Bryan. Watson will continue in this race with Mr. Bryan.

Watson is a political quantity not easily erased. He is vital and hard to efface. His ambition is towering. He will not quietly consent to be sponged off the public slate. He won't go back an inch. His tendency is forward and upward. In fusion he sees partial extinction. He would grow dim. He would lose individuality, He would lose prominence. He would no longer even wear the semblance of the key to the situation. He would look like whimpering babe, appeased by a piece of dry cake. He would be giving up an orange for a maypop. That's the way the Watson mind and eye argued and saw it. That's the view upon which it was settled. And no other view will present itself o the gentleman from McDuffle. The Wat

Watson will be much on the stump. He will, of course, be in the hands of Marion Butler, who has charge of the populist campaign, but he will be given the best appointments. He will speak in the field just s soon as Senator Butler assigns him to duty. Butler gave him an assignment two days after the St. Louis convention that Watson didn't relish. It stirred up no end of a row in the papers. Butler wired Watson to hie quickly to Alabama and rally strength for Goodwyn. Watson did not go and his polite refusal made the fuss that the newspapers told about. It was characteristic of Watson and significant of his careful future course that he did not go. He saw nothing to be gained for any one. The Alabama race was run and lost. Being newly put on a ticket with a democrat, Watson didn't care to fight the battle of a republican-populist fusion ticket, with that battle already far lost. Wisely, he kept out of it. Watson it not snapping at flies; he is after junebugs. He is not seeking failing causes; he is looking for worlds to con-

Gives the Inside History of That Sound Money Edition.

ANSWERS MANAGER CABANISS

Presents a Statement of the Facts in the Case,

SOME INTERESTING EXHIBITS ARE MADE

Shows a Telegram Sent Him Four Days After Bryan Was Nominated. His Correspondence,

Agent Nicoll, promoter in New York of the "sound money" missionary edition of The Atlanta Journal, has spoken,

He has been stirred into speech by the elaborate statement of Business Manager Cabaniss published in last Friday's Journal, in which all the blame for the embarrassing flasco in which the edition resulted, was put upon his shoulders.

Mr. Cabaniss said that Agent Nicoll had gone farther than he was authorized to go in making representations to New York advertisers regarding the political attitude of The Journal. Agent Nicoll answers this by a plain statement of the facts, without making comment. In his card Mr. Cabaniss went on to say that Agent Nicoll was authorized to promote the "sound money" edition of The Journal purely upon a business basis without using The Journal's position on the money question to get business. In answer to this Agent Nicoll submits the correspondence between himself and Mr. Cabaniss. He shows a telegram from Mr. Cabaniss sent four days after the nomination of Bryan, assuring him that The Journal will remain true to its financial policy and increasing the edition from four to eight pages. Agent Nicoll's card gives the history of a highly interesting journalistic venture about which the public feels a great deal of curiosity. It will be remembered that the "sound money" edition of The Journal was to be issued in the interest of the gold cause in Georgia and was to be supported entirely by advertisements from goldbugs of the east. Such goldbugs as did not have advertisements to insert were to publish interviews giving their opinions on the currency question. Agent Nicoll was employed to work up the edition in New York. He got up the advertising matter, but when The Journal come out for the Chicago nominees the New York advertisers begun to kick. This brought to light the history of the enterprise. The publicity stopped the publication of the edition and it has never been issued. Its fate is yet unsettled, so far as known. Mr. Nicoll's Statement.

Following is Mr. Nicoll's statement. Editor Constitution—In regard to the statement of Mr. H.-H. Cabaniss, published in last Friday's issue of The Journal, I beg leave to hand to you herewith a brief statement of the facts in the case, as well as three very important communications in connection therewith. I do not care to make any comment on the attitude of The Journal's management but merely place the hal's management, but merely place the facts in your hands. I have nothing to nd the statement.

say beyond the statement. The facts are so plain that any one may see just where the fault lies and what the motives of The Journal were in refusing to publish the New York edition.

The arrangement to publish a New York edition of The Atlanta Journal was made a number of months ago, when the paper was conducting a vigorous "sound money" campaign in Georous "sound money" campai to eight pages) and was to be reproduced in twenty-five other newspapers throughout the south, the idea being to reach, all told, about 100,000 readers in that section. Besides advertisements and reading notices of northern, particularly New York business firms and Interests, the supplement was to contain a number of special articles descriptive of and relating to New York. The whole arrangement was placed in my hands and I was in the position of being virtually the editor of the supplement with power to decide what should go into it. I am a "sound money" man myself and the paper was then aggressively "sound money," while the advertisers here to whom the matter was presented were generally acquainted with the fact that The Atlanta Journal and its proprietor, Hon. Hoke Smith, were making such a strong fight against the silverities in that part of the south. A majority of the advertising secured for the supplement was plain business cards or reading matter. Some of the patrons, however, appreciated the fact that it was a good opportunity to express their views on the financial and currency situation, as representatives of the most important northern business community, for the enlightenment of southern readers, and in a paper that had made a considerable name for itself in these parts by standing up for "sound money," as well as in twenty-five other papers.

The Chicago convention came when the preparation for the supplement was standing up for "sound money," as well as in twenty-five other papers.

The Chicago convention came when the preparation for the supplement was in progress. The adoption of a free silver Platform there and the nomination of a free silver candidate brought some inquiries from advertisers and on Saturday, July 11th (the day Sewall was nominated). I sent the following telegram to Mr. H. H. Cabaniss, the business manager of The Atlanta Journal:

On the next day, July 14th, I wrote Mr. Cabaniss at Atlanta as follows:

New York, July 14, 1896.—Mr. H. H. Coaniss, Business Manager The Atlanta Journal, Atlanta, Ga. My Dear Sir: Your felegram assuring me of The Journal's attitude on the "sound money" question was a relief, for in canvassing I find almost all our advertisers think much more of the good the distribution of the supplement will do for that cause than they do of the benefit it will be to them in a business way. On a strictly business basis I do not think we could count on half the support which we have received. The business men here in the east are just as strong for "sound money" as our friends in the west and south are for free silver, and it is largely on account of the stand which The Journal has taken that our contracts have been secured. This is why I felt anxious when several of our best advertisers wanted my assurance of the continued policy of The Journal. I simply showed them your message, and several who were on the fence have come right in with us.

In case you have not wired about those extra pages by the time you receive this letter please do so at once, so that I may know just how to arrange the make-up. Yours very truly, CHARLES H. NICOLL.

charge of the paper and was passed and approved by them as being in complete accord with the policy of the paper. It was set up in type, the stereotype plates for the other papers were made and the forms were ready for the press before the change in the policy of the paper to support the Chicago candidates was suddenly made by its proprietor and the order sent by Mr. Hoke Smith, the president of the company, from Washington to Atlanta to withhold the issue of the supplement. These are the facts in the matter and the portion of the correspondence referred to above would show any one how the management of the paper regards the policy of issuing a "sound money" supplement up to the very moment that it was decided to swing the paper over to Mr. Bryan. It may be remarked that it took the management two weeks to make up its mind to support the Chicago candidates, and that during that time the preparation for issuing the New York supplement went on not only with the knowledge of The Atlanta Journal's management, but with their active cooperation in securing business and the employment of their mechanical facilities for carrying out the plan.

Says They Received Money.

Says They Received Money.

Says They Received Money.

The claim has been advanced by The Atlanta Journal that none of the proceeds derived from the New York edition have come into their hands. The fact, however, is that I carried out my part of the contract with The Journal and turned over to its management the full amount due. The payment was accepted by them at the time without the slightest intimation that it was in any way unsatisfactory.

The idea that any of the reading matter or advertisements in the New York edition were "objectionable" is evidently an afterthought. Every one with any knowledge of newspaper routine knows the technical meaning of the word used in such a connection. It is simply absurd to claim that the views of a large number of the most prominent business men of New York could of a large number of the most promi-nent business men of New York could by any process be brought under such a

From the foregoing statement correspondence it will be seen that The Atlanta Journal was at first most cager to carry out the arrangement to publish the New York edition, but since The Journal has decided to give its support to the free silver candidates it finds it expedient to repudiate its agreement and refuses to publish the New York edition.

GENTRY'S HOT PACE

John R. Breaks His Mile Record on the Columbus Track

MAKES DISTANCE IN 2:03 1-4

Greatest Work Done While Coming Down the Home Stretch.

CHEERED BY THOUSANDS OF SPECTATORS Andrews Drove the Stallion Against

Time-Other Races and Baseball Games.

Columbus, O., August 7 .- John R. Gentry he wonderful pacing stallion who holds the world's record, reduced that record on the track of the Columbus Driving Association today and established, in connection with previous fast time made on this track this week, a reputation as a fast track for

The track was recently remeasured by an engineer to set aside charges that it was short mile, and found to be two feet over mile.

It was almost 5 o'clock when Gentry was rought out for a preliminary warming up for the attempt to break his own record and the world's record for pacing stallions, 2:031/2. The track was heavy from the rains of last night, and it was not generally expected that he would succeed.

The other races of the afternoon had, however, greatly improved the track's condition. Two or three miles were paced at a lively clip, the great crowds cheering Gentry enthusiastically. They wanted him to win and he seemed to know it. Billy Andrews drove him and when he was ready for the start John Dickerson, with his running horse, went to the half to pace him in. The second time he came up to the line Andrews gave the nod and was awarded Down the first quarter he flew like an arrow, but the watches showed that he nad consumed 311/2 in reaching that post. Hope of breaking the record fell faster as was noticed that the watches indicated :021/2 when he reached the half. Then the effect of the running horse on him began to show itself and he made the third quarter in 291/4.

Down the home stretch the horses cam like the wind and it was evident that he was pushing the record very close. Great cheers went up from the grand stand at the magnificent exhibition of speed at the inish which rose again when the time was hung out and it was officially announced that Gentry had broken his record and reduced the world's stallion pacing record from 2:031/2 to 2:031/4.

DEATH IN THE

John McGraugh Swallows Laudanum and Dies.

MONEY TROUBLES THE CAUSE

Overcome by Despondency the Charles tonian Thought Death Preferable to a Miserable Existence.

John McGraugh, a white man thirty years of age, committed suicide in a Decatur street boarding house by drinking two ounces of laudanum yesterday afternoon. The cause that prompted the rash deed s supposed to have been despondency from financial troubles. He left no farewell mes sage and died in a short while after taking the deadly drug.

McGraugh came to this city about fiv weeks ago from Charleston, S. C., where he has been a member of the police force for seven yars. Political issues caused his discharge, however, and he finally drifted to Atlanta, where he secured employment as a bar tender at the Midway saloon on Decatur street. He has a wife and one child who are in Asheville, N. C., spending the summer. Mrs McGraugh was notified wire yesterday afternoon of her husband's death. Coroner Paden summoned a jury and held an inquest over the body at Patter son's undertaking establishment on Peach tree street last night at 8 o'clock. Several dence was conclusive that the deceased had suicided by taking two ownces of laudanum, and the jury returned a verdict o that effect.

Had Been Unwell. McGraugh has apparently been in bac health for several days. He has remained nearly all the time in his room and seemed very morbid and despondent. Early yesterday morning he went over o the saloon and opened up for the day's ousiness. He was paid his wages and went immediately back across the street and settled his board bill with Mrs. Lanier, and refused to go to the dining room for

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon Mrs. La mer was sitting in the hall when she no tice McGraugh emerge from his room half nude. He was very pale, and judging fro his incoherent speech, his mind was af fected. He walked up and down the hall in a very excited condition, and was finally approached by Mr. S. M. Chatham, who works near by. Mr. Chatham attempted to soothe the dying man, but without avail Dr. Lampkin was quickly sent for and the arrived in a short while. The physician did everything possible for the dving man but McGraugh died eight minutes after the drug had been taken.

A Bottle on the Dresser. A careful examination of the room dis-closed a two ounce bottle sitting on the dresser not far from the bed. It was empty, but the odor proved only too well that it had contained laudanum. The body was taken to the undertakers, where it will be prepared for burial. Th father of the deceased lives in Anderson S. C., where the remains will probably be aken for interment some time today. It is thought that McGraugh killed him self on account of his inability to provide for his family. It is known that he has een very despondent for some time for this reason, and his best friends are of th opinion that this is the cause. He was not drinking at the time of his death. PARDON BOARD AT WORK.

Many Pardon Applications Are Being Investigated and Recommendations Made for Pardons.

The state convict pardon board is in session at the state capitol. The board has investigated quite a number of applications for pardon and has made many recomfor pardon and has made mendations to the governor. The pardon board was created by the legislature last year and it has handled a great many cases during its existence. Yesterday seventeen applications were investigated and will be referred to the governor The members of the board are members of the state senate and house of representathe state senate and house of representatives, as follows:

The members of the board state that they find many convicts are deserving of pardons and that the board is doing everything possible to seiect such cases and act on them. The board makes recommendations to the governor and the latter is usually guided by the recommendation.

GENERAL YOUNG'S DARING. His Share in Capturing 2,500 Head of Cattle. Some years ago the general was relating some of his experiences in the war. He had been asked especially to tell of the capture of the corral of cattle, which General Grant had brought together as a base of supplies for his army, on the Chickahominy, in 1864, says the New York Times. This capture was one of the most brilliant and successful raids of the war, in which General Young had played a gallant and conspicu-Young had played a gallant and conspicuous part; but throughout the narration a casual listener would have thought that he was relating the incident to show how magnificently Hampton had conducted the affair. The conception and plan were Hampton's It was arranged that a picked body of 500 cavalry, under Hampton, should sweep around to Grant's rear, capture the corral and drive the cattle into the confederate lines, while General Young should hold at bay any federal troops that might come to the support of the corral guard. The scouts had gathered every detail of information needed. They knew the exact location of the cattle, their number and quality of the troops on guard, the relative position of the great army of Grant and how long it would require for him to dispatch assistance to the guard when attacked. Hampton relied upon Young to keep back the entire army, if necessary, until fairly good country, it was necessary for Hampton to drive them quite close to the eremy's lines, making the risk very much

Hampton to drive them quite close to the eremy's lines, making the risk very much greater.

Everything worked smoothly until the cattle had been captured. The negro guard were soon disposed of and the corral, consisting of 2,500 head of cattle, was shortly being driven toward the confederate camp. To reach the rear of the lines Hampton and Young and all of their troops had been in the saddle day and night and had ridden fifty miles almost without a hait. Despite the fatigue of horses and men a forced march had to be made by Hampton, while Young and his weary cavalry had to face the entire federal lines and "draw their fire" until the raiders were out of harm's way. General Young accomplished this in most brilliant style. He stretched out his 2,500 troopers into so long a line that it seemed as if nothing less than an army division could occupy the space. By rushing from one point to another a considerable body of his men and concentrating fire on the federal advance he succeeded in keeping up the deception. The federals expected momentarily to engage the confederates in force, and so advanced cautiously, feeling their way. The dashing cavalry officer was playing Napoleonic tactics in miniature, Before the army of Grant realized that it was putting forth its giant strength against a handful of daring horsemen Hampton was safe, and the special lines of the grand army of the confederates closed up and galloped away, having completed the most reckless foray of the war. "The federal cattle," added the general, "formed the basis of our supplies for the rest of our campaign."

CASTLEBERRY CAN'T BE FOUND

Driver of a Laundry Wagon Has Bee Missing from His Boarding House Since Last Monday.

F. L. Castleberry, a young man about twenty-two years of age, has disappeared very mysteriously from the city. Castleberry was employed at Guthman's laundry as a wagon driver. Last Monday about 8 o'clock he finished his day's work and started to turn over his collec-tions to his employer, when the the latter put him off until the next morning on account of urgent business.

Castleberry then went out of the Lundry with about fifteen dollars of Mr. Guthman's money in his pocket. He was seen to enter the Novelty restaurant, on Walton street, a few minutes later, but beyond this no race of him has been found. Mr. Guthman began to grow uneasy the ext morning when Castleberry failed to show up, but gave the matter little atten tion, thinking his driver was unavoidably detained. When Castleberry failed to appear at the laundry, yesterday, Mr. Guthman began to suspect that something was wrong, and reported the matter to the po-

Yesterday afternoon and last night the police scoured the city for the missing man, but no trace of him could be found. The authorities are of the opinion that he has

Mr. Guthman does not think that Castleberry has absconded. It is not probable that he would have left the city with the small amount of money he had, when he could have collected three times as much. The laundryman believes his employe has either been foully dealt with or has left the city for some urgent reason only known to himself.

Castleberry boarded at 274 Woodward ave nue and roomed with Mr. J. W. Jett, wh is employed at Regenstein's, Mr. Jett, when seen last night, stated that he could give no reason for his friend's sudden disappearance. Castleberry took dinner at home Monday as usual, and if he intended leave n at that time, he said nothing of it.

Some of Castleberry's most intimate rlends think he has been involved in uble with a woman in the past, and that this is the cause of his sudden disappear Castleberry has been in this city fiv months. He is a telegrapher by profession, and came here from Knoxville, Tenn. He first sought employment with the Troy aundry, where he worked about three weeks, after which he was employed by Mr. Guthman. He enjoyed the confidence his employer. He is not a thoroughly ober man, and is said to be rather wild It is thought by some that his dissipations ave gotten him into trouble that has necessitated his leaving the city. The police

UNDER THE FIRST NAPOLEON. One of the Last Survivers of Waterloo

Dies in New Jersey. From Harper's Round Table. Most of us nowadays, when thinking o the Napoleonic wars, consider them as a part of the remote past, and it is difficult to realize that there may be people sti living who took part in the battles of Ma-rengo, Jena and Waterloo. But all of Napoleon's soldiers are not yet dead, and one man who fought under the great French general is said to be living now near Cleve-land, Ohio. Whether that is true or not, it is a fact that only recently one of Na-pcieon's old warriers died at Soldiers' Home, Kearney, N. J.

poleon's old warriors died at Soldiers' Home, Kearney, N. J.

His name was Henry Mueller, and he was born in Germany in 1794, and when the French armies invaded l-russia Mueller was fifteen years old, with many of his compatriots he was drafted into the grand army and marched off to Russia to fight the Cossacks and the cold. He was at Moscow, and tramped all the way back in the disastrous retreat, suffering untold tortures and seeing his fellow soldlers fall in the snow at almost every step. But Mueller kept up, and lived to get back to Germany and to fight at the battles of Bautzen, Leipsic, and finally in the great battle of Waterloo.

After Napoleon had been captured by the British and sent to the lonely island of St. Helena, and the great armies of Europe had been disbanded, Mueller took ship and sailed to the United States. Not long after his arrival in this country the Seminole and Mexican wars broke out, and the old spirit of the soldier was reawakened in Mueller and he went again to the front, this time wearing the American flag. So much warfare had now made a confirmed soldier of the German, and so when the war of the rebellion broke out in 1861 he again took up his musket and fought through the entire war.

One of the most remarkable things of

took up his musket and fought through the entire war.

One of the most remarkable things of all these experiences is that Mueller was never seriously wounded, and managed to keep himself in such good health that he lived to be over 100 years old, and spent his last days in peace and comfort in the soldiers' home, smoking his long German pipe on the lawn under the trees, and telling of his own personal experiences, which, to most of us, are part of a very remote history. history.

SHOT THE CONVICT

Durham Whipping Boss Attacked by a Negro Convict Yesterday.

LACOUNT SERIOUSLY WOUNDED

The Convict Was Being Punished and He Attacked the Boss with a Shovel to His Sorrow.

Alex Lacount, one of the most desperate men in the state penitentiary, now confined the camp at Durham Junction, Walker county, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded yesterday morning. T. B. Agerton, a whipping boss at the camp, fired the shot which dangerously wounded the conceived meagerly in a telegram to Principal Keeper of the Penitentiary J. S. Turner, from Agerton. The whipping boss stated that the convict was dangerously wounded, and he might have died last night The telegram from Agerton to Judge Turner reads as follows:

"Durham Junction, Ga., August 7.—Judge J. S. Turner, Principal Keeper of the Pententlary, Atlanta, Ga.—While trying to punish Aleck Lacount this morning he attacked me with a shovel and I shot him. Dangerously wounded.

"T. B. AGERTON."

Immediately upon receipt of the telegram Judge Turner wired instructions to Durham that full particulars of the shooting be sent by matl, and the information may be received at the capitol today. Lacount is known as a bad man in the penitentiary and he has been shot before for making opposition to punishment. He was sent up from McIntosh county in June, 1887, under three sentences for burglary. His term is a twenty-five-year one, and of that time he has served nine years. Lacount was formerly located at Cole City, and at that camp he was shot and seriously wounded by the superintendent about two years ago. He was being punished, and, becoming angry, grabbed a stove poker and struck at his guard, while the latter's finger rested on a post in the room, the convict and guard running round and round the post. The lick mashed off the finger of the guard, and the latter then shot the convict. He recovered after a while, but never became an orderly con-able trouble, and they were not surprised when they heard of the shooting yesterday.

The Sudden Advance Compelled Weak Holders To Market Their Securities-Bears Had a Field Day.

New York, August 7.- The bears had a New York, August 7.—The bears had a field day at the stock exchange, liquidations having been on a heavy scale until the last hour of business, when a steadier tone prevailed, the latter a result of covering of short contracts. The early loss in prices was equal to 1@714 per cent in the usually active list and 2@13 per cent in prices was equal to 1@7½ per cent in the usually active list, and 2@13 per cent in the specialties, or stocks which are not traded in daily. The depression in the market was due principally to the higher rates for money demanded by bankers generally. market was due principally to the higher rates for money demanded by bankers gen-erally, which has compelled weak holders to market their securities. Today call mon-ey, which has not risen above 3 per cent-for months, suddenly advanced to 7 per cent, and closed near the top figure, Deal-ings in time money were on a very moderate scale, and, in fact, lenders were not disand, in fact, lenders were not disposed to do business in this department at all. To add to the nervousness a story was started to the effect that the banks was started to the effect that the banks intended to issue clearing house certificates. There was nothing in this report, but it had its influence. It is true that there has been considerable calling of loans by the banks, but this always happens when values at the stock exchange melt away as they did today. The west was also a sallyr for the account of operators who r for the account of operators have sustained serious losses through the collapse of the Diamond Matth deal. Another depressing factor was the alleged statement by ex-Secretary of the Navy Whitney that Bryan would carry New York. This alarmed any number of small operators, and resulted in the selling of operators, and resulted in the sensing of quite a large amount of long stock. New low records were made in a number of instances, and some stocks sold below the figures current in the Venezuelan war scare. Early Morning Gossip.

New York, August 7.—(Over the Paine-Murphy Co.'s Private Wire.)—The decline today shows a large loss in values. Manhattan up to noon has fallen 7 points, Burlington and Quincy 5%, Sugar 4½, St. Paul 4. Gas 31/2 and Northwest, Louisville and Nashville and Western Union over 2½ points each. The selling has not been in particularly large amounts.

St. Paul had support around 64, but below that figure trading was in small lots. No large lot of Manhattan was wanted until the price reached 80, where 2,000 shares were taken.

About 2,000 shares of Western Union were taken at 75. Below that price the demand

There has been a good deal of talk here to the effect that the clique could be shaken out of its stock by a little further decline. There is no doubt that if the bears were successful in doing this there would be quite a little stock for sale, as the group in question is understood to have bought and paid for at least 1.000 shares of all kinds, chiefly St. Paul and Louisville and Nashville.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Panicky Condition of New York Stocks Causes a Decline Early.

Causes a Decline Early.

Chicago, August 7.—A panicky condition of the New York stock market found reflection in the board of trade business this morning. Wheat softened and declined, a general feeling of discouragement and uneasiness taking possession of the market and exhibiting itself in a loss at one time of almost a cent, but on the report that a considerable amount of cash wheat, variously estimated from 200,000 to 400,000 bushels, had been worked for eastern shipment, a buying movement of some importance developed and a full recovery was the result. Trade did not indicate any unusual interest and local operators were the usual interest and local operators were the only people taking part in the transactions. September wheat opened from 58% to 56c, sold between 55% and 56%, closing at 56%—unchanged from yesterday. Cash wheat sold at te decline, but rallied and closed rounded.

Corn was affected more by the temper and tone of wheat and by the general speculative discontent than by direct information relative to the grain itself. Opening prices were weak and lower early, but recovered when the leading cereal altered its course. September corn opened 24%c, sold between 24@24%, closing at 24%c-1%c under yesterday. Cash corn was fairly steady and oulet. Oats-About the same conditions were

Oats—About the same conditions were present in the oats market as in wheat and corn. Business was imited to local transactions, and the tone was easy early, but steadier subsequently. Sympathy with the other grains furnished the motive for the action. September oats closed a shade under yesterday. Cash oats were ½c lower for old and ½@%c lower for new.

Provisions. The general feeling of insecurity surrounding the grain and stock markets was at work in provisions. Holders were uneasy and willing to sell, whilst even shorts displayed little disposition to buy. The hog market was 10@15 cents lower, which was another argument for depreciation. The later discovery in wheat brought argument for depreciation. The later discovery in wheat brought argument for depreciation. The later recovering fully, but lard and ribs only slightly. September pork cosed unchanged; September lard 55@7%c lower.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter.
Chicago, Angust 7.—(Over the Paine-Murphy Co.'s Private Wire.)—The weakness developed late yesterday and the panicky condition of the New York atock market carried prices down still further this mogning. September wheat selling at low as 55%c. and December, 55%c. Liquidation of September contracts was quite large, and the premium for December widened to 3c. per bushel. On this decline there has been an exceedingly large cash business. At present writing we are unable to determine just the amount sold today, but some place it in the neighborhood of half million bales. A small portion of this was for direct export. Had it not been for this feature speculative prices would undoubtedly have declined lower, but so long as the cash article is wanted so urgently as at present, and foreigners are also buyers, conservadive traders felt disposed to make purchases, especially after such a decline as we have had the past two days. Reports from the winter wheat states have not improved and are worse, if anything. Cables did not respond to our break yesterday, Liverpool being only about ½c. lower on the opening and at the close. Clearances were light at 126,00 the close. Clearances break has caused heavy liquidation, and now that this pressure is off the market, and inasmuch as the situation scarcely has not weakened any, we do not look for much further decline unless the panicky condition of the stock market should continue. Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter. not weakened any, we do not look for much further decline unless the panicky condition of the stock market should continue, n which case wheat prices might be affected to some extent.

Corn and oats have held steady, advancing early, but selling off n little later. The arge receipts of corn still has a tendency o curtail buying, although around present ow prices, and the fact that the crop of corn is not yet assured, bears are not agreesive, and are inclined to cover on the weak spots.

SIMULTANEOUS RUSH TO SELL

Demand from Shorts in a Great Meas ure Satisfied-Cotton Declined 25 to 32 Points.

Messrs. Riordan & Co., in their cotton let ter yesterday, say: "Another wild market today. Liverpool set the pace at first and we followed enthusiastically. But the steam seemed to give out after a while and a slump occurred sharp and sudden enough to take the breath away from many a bull. January opened at 7.82, advanced to 7.90, declined to 7.44 and closed at 7.45, with the tone weak. The secret of the break was that the urgent demand from shorts to cover had been in a great measure satisfied, and as soon as the ring realized this fact everybody rushed in simultaneous-ly to sell, and values melted away like mist before the sunshine. The smash in the stock market also helped the decline. The worst of the excitement in cotton we believe is now over and prices will probably adjust themselves once more upon the basis of demand and prospective supply. Today's break has not changed our opinion. Crop estimates, we think, must be materially re-duced and we think that cotton bought upondeclines will in the end prove a profitable

New York, August 7.—(Over the Paine-Murphy Co.'s Private Wire.)—It was a day of realizing and prices declined. Not but what the crop news is as bad as ever, for there were damage reports in any quantity. The total rainfail at twelve stations for the past twenty-four hours was only .96 of an inch, and the signal service predicts fair weather for the next thirty-six hours, except possibly local thunder storms tonight in Arkansas and Tennessee. New Orleans sold here today, and there was also considerable selling for Liverpool account. Prices opened 8 to 15 points higher, lost this and declined, closing weak at net decline of 25@32 points, with sales of 345.600 bales. Liverpool advanced 1-16c. on the spot with sales of 5.000 bales. Futures there opened 1 point lower, but rallied and closed at a net advance of 10 to 11 points. New Orleans advanced 36 to 37 points, but lost the improvement and declined 9 to 12 points. Norfolk advanced 4c. and Mobile, Savannah, Baltimore, Augusta and St. Louis, 4c. Manchester was quiet but firm. Rainfall at the south for twenty-four hours ended 8 o'clock this a. m. was .26 of an inch at Batesville, Miss.; .20 at Yemassee, S. C.; .20 at Pine Apple, Ala.; .12 at Waycross, Ga.: .8 at Charleston, S. C., and a trace at Savannah. Receipts at ports were 1,096 bales, against 831 last week and 97 last year. Total for the week, 4,509, against 5,391 last week, and 2,083 last year. Spot cotton here was unchanged with no sales.

The Dry Goods Market. New York, August 7.—In the dry good market cotton goods has been quieter to day than yesterday in so far as volume o business goes. There has been less doin in bleached cottons by the manufacturing trades and less in prints by jobbing houses trades and less in prints by jobbing houses, with no compensating increase in demand for other descriptions. At the same time the general tone has ruled steady. In the woolen goods division the demand continues light throughout, and business is free from new feature of any moment. Complaints of slow payments are more numerous, and an increasing reserve in credits is noticeable.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, August 7.—The wild markets of the past few days have been repeated today, with Liverpool participating in the excitement today to such an extent that our cables describe the market as crazy. Here the market eased under the liquidation of the long interest and execution of stop orders amid scenes of intense excitement, prices between transactions fluctuating as much as 8 points, while the execution of an order for 1,000 bales has resulted in sharp fluctuations. The trade as a rule has been disposed to do as little as possible pending a settlement of the transactions of the past week. Crop accounts continue to report a condition of the plant difficult to realize unless it foreshadows a crop disaster in the southwest and the Mississippi valley. Liquidation continued during the afternoon with the market weak at the close, but it was noticeable that the largest houses were buyers of the low-priced cotton. Their action was based on the continued bad crop accounts received from the southwest and the absence of rain. The liquidation was brought about by the fear the large receipts in Texas might cause a sharp decline in Liverpool tomorrow.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

New York, August 7.—Cotton opened 8 to 15 points higher, but lost the improvement and declined 25 to 32 points, closing weak with sales of 345,600 bales.

Today's Features—If cotton declined today it was not because reports of damage to the crops were lacking; in fact, they were very much in evidence, so much so indeed that they caused a sharp rise at the opening. The reports were just as bad as ever. The official weather report showed that the total precipitation in the entire cotton belt for iwenty-four hours was only 96 of an inch. At Little Rock the maximum temperature was 104 degrees yesterday-and at Memphis 102. But it was a day of liquidation. The early advance was soon effaced and prices broke sharply. It was only natural that operators should want to realize the handsome emoluments accruing from a week's speculation marked with tharp upward fluctuations. Bears hammered and stop orders were caught on the way down, accelerating the decline.

What Bradstreet's Says on the Situation-Report of R. G. Dun & Co. on the Market.

New York, August 7 .- Bradstreet's to-

In nearly all lines trade is unchanged and in some departments lifeless. South-and southwest the heat has had an un-favorable influence, but merchants in all directions continue to buy for needs only. While it is too early for fall trade to aswhile it is too early lot sume large proportions, distribution of clothing and shoes at Chicago has improved somewhat, although less active than proved somewhat, although has active than one year ago. At several centers bankers have preferred not to loan as freely as heretofore. Merchants, not wishing to be refused, have accordingly curtailed their requests for accommodation.

Mercantile collections are slow, in some instances more difficult to make. Renewscrutiny of credits has had an effect in ed scrutmy of credits has had an effect in restricting the same. Iron and steel industries remain excessively dull. Makers of pig are piling stock. Large lots could be obtained at concessions. Cotton yarn manufacturers have agreed to curtail production fifty per cent during August, and ow-ing to lack of demand western packing house employes have been laid off. There is no improvement in wool, and some Pail-adelphia mills have saut down.

Portland advices are that no considerable movement of Oregon wool will take place until after election. Cotton goods remain unchanged, notwithstanding the remain the relative activity among makers of boots and shoes is because of orders on hand, rather than new business. Stock values in the New Vork market have broken on liquidation and bearish pressure, with an utter lack of buying support. Besides the uncertainty of the political outlook and the slackness of trade, there have been several depress-ing factors, including the breakdown of a local speculative inflation at Chica-go, the appearance of pressure in the ey market and talk of damage to railroad earnings.

Business failures throughout the Unite: States this week number 209, a decrease compared with one week ago, when the total was 294. The falling off is principally in the middle and New England states As compared with one year ago, this week's total shows an increase of sixty, and with two years ago, an increase of seventy-two. In the first week of August, 1893, during the panic, the total number of failures was 474.

Comparatively favorable reports concerning general trade are more numerous than in preceding weeks. Pittsburg jobbers re-port a slight increase in the volume of trade, but at Baltimore there is a marked improvement, with jobbers receiving orders freely.

The favorable condition of the Texas cotton crop continues to help jobbers at Galveston. Notwithstanding unfavorable reports as to cotton in Louisiana, expected payments of sugar bounties next week, and favorable reports as to the Louisiana sugar crop tend to stimulate trade at New Orleans. Both Savannah and Augusta re-

At least a month earlier than had been expected Chicago has drawn heavily upon its bank balances here, and withdrawals of all other western funds may naturally result. Europe was also moved accompanied by a brass band and baseball club.

Public speaking commenced at 10 o'clock, to sell American stocks rather freely, so that the average of the sixty most active railway stocks fell about $2.18 per share and the average of trust stocks about

It is important that the increase of merchandise exports, $800,000, or 12 per cent over last year—for the week and the de-crease of imports—$700,000 or 7.7 per cent still continues to limit the sum payable

The situation as to cetton is doubtless critical for many producers. Extremely hot and dry weather has done serious harm, but it must indeed be an extraordinary condition that reduces the yield 20 per cent in August. Men of much knowledge and experience but a few days ago judged a yield of 10,000,000 bales probable, and if they were 1,000,000 bales too high, still those who now predict only 7,000,000 bales are likely to err in the opposite direction. With large acreage it is always safe to remember that only a part of the crop is affected by misfortunes between least be of service to planters in giving them better prices, whether buyers realize profits or ont. The great strike of garment workers here is much extended; the strike at Cleve-land has broken out again and involves several other branches of labor; the fron furnace men of the Shenango valley re-sist a reduction to the wages of May, 1895, though Mahoning valley workers do not; the iron workers throughout the country are striving to cut down cost in der to keep in operation; the iron mines of the Gogebic range are stopping; the suspension of cotton mills has become more general, and over 4,000,000 spindles are said to be idle at Fall River alone. and probably three-eighths or more of the entire producing capacity of the country; the rubber works have mostly stopped, and notwithstanding the light-weight open-ing, a number of woolen mills. er than last year for the first week of August and 2.3 per cent smaller than in 1892. The early crop movement and the speculative collapse at Chicago caused both commercial and speculative loans here to be much restricted. Failures in July, classified by branches of business, show larger liabilities in the lumber than in any of the manufacturing classes, and for seven menths double the liabilities in the next largest class, while in trading the dry goods liabilities lead. Failures for the week have been 240 in the United States, against 225 last year, and 32 in Canada, against 43 last year. against 43 last year.

LEXINGTON WANTS IT. Hard Work Being Done To Secure

Railroad. Athens, Ga. August 7.—(Special.)—The peo-ple of Lexington, Ga., are working hard to secure the Tennessee, Georgia and Atlanta railroad for their place.

At present it is said that the road will pass through Athens on the tracks of the Georgia, Carolina and Northern and will that road a few miles from Athens in its route to Augusta.

It is rumored, however, that the track of the Seaboard Air-Line will be used to Five Forks; that it will there connect with Colonel James M. Smith's road to Smithonia and from Smithonia will proceed to Au-Sandy Cross is very much elated over the fact that the new road will, in all probability, go through that place.

The people of Lexington are bestirring themselves, however, to offer sufficient inducements to secure the passage of the road through their town. Lexington is to have a large new school building. The fund left by the late Mr. Meson, with which Meson academy is run, will be used as a nucleus for a fund to be raised for the erection and equipment of a ten-thousand-dollar school building.

MR. CLEVELAND AND PARTY. His Views on Party Allegiance and Democratic Duty. Editor Constitution-Will Mr. Groven Cleveland bolt?

From reading of newspapers which speak as having authority in the matter the inference is that President Cleveland is going to renounce the ticket as well as the platform of the democratic party as given to the country at Chicago. Let us not be too hasty on this important point. What warrant is there for any August 1st and frost. The price rose almost beyond precedent, % of a cent on Wednesday alone, and the alarm will at the fairly and regularly constituted leadership and platform of his party? He said in response to the committee which, in 1892, notified him of his nomination: "I find much relief in the reflection that I have been selected merely to stand for the principles and purposes to which my party is pledged, and for the enforcemen and supremacy of which all who have any right to claim democratic fellowship must constantly and persistently labor." While it is true that the president this year may find no relief in the reflection that somebody else has been chosen to stand for the principles and purposes of the party, yet he has spoken words of wisdom for the disappointed and dissatisfied which ought to be engraved in letters of light and hung on walls wherever democrats assemble.

He said to the notification committee: "True to its history and its creed, our party will respond to the wants of the people within safe lines, and guided by enlightened statesmanship. To the trou-bled and impatient within our member-ship we commend continued unswerving allegiance to the party whose principles in all times past have been found sufficient for them, and whose aggregate wisdom and patriotism, their experience teaches

IN MERCER'S BEHALF

Rev. Hugh Bernard Has Been Selected as Canvasser.

TO GET FUNDS FOR MERCER

Meeting of the Central Campaign Com mittee of the College Yesterday. News and Gossip of Macon.

Macon, Ga., August 7 .- (Special.) - Rev Hugh R. Bernard, of Athens, paster of four Baptist churches near that place, and school commissioner of Clarke county, has een elected financial agent of Mercer university. The central campaign committee of the oard of trustees of Mercer university met in Macon today at the office of Chairman E. T. Mallary. The committee consists of Rev. Dr. Henry McDonald, of Atlanta; Rev. T. W. O'Kelley, of Griffin; Rev. S. Lansing Burrows, of Augusta; Rev. T. P. Bell, of Atlanta; Rev. J. L. White, of Macon, and Messrs. C. B. Willingham and E. T. Mal Messrs. C. B. Willingham and E. T. Mallary, of Macon. The duties of this com mittee is to take in charge the work of raising an endowment fund of $100,000 for Mercer, and the selection of a special con-vasser to labor in Georgia and elsewhere for subscriptions. Recently the committee selected Rev. H. R. Bernard, of Athens, as this special can-vasser, or financial agent, and the matter has been kept a profound secret until today, as it has not been known whether Rev. Mr. Bernard would accept the posidon. He came to Macon today and me with the committee to consider the proposition made him. The committee held ses-sions this afternoon and morning, and The Constitution's correspondent is assured that Mr. Beranard will accept the office of finar cial agent. It is probable that he will re-sign the pastorate of his churches and the office of school commissioner and remove to Macon with his family. He is a gentle man of great energy and zeal and has al-ways manifested much interest in the wel-fare of Mercer. He has for years been a zealous trustee of the institution and wil make an active campaign in behalf of Mer-cer under the slogan of "Men and money." He will not only solicit funds for the $100,000 adowment, but will seek to bring stu dents to the university. He will go at once in the field and prosecute an active canvass. Rev. Eernard is one of the ablest and most popular Baptist divines in the state. He is at present pastor of the following four churches: Bethabara, High lowing four churches: Bethabara, I Shoals, Mars Hill and Watkinsville, of Shoals, Mars Hill and Watkinsville, of the Appalachee association. He was a classmate of the distinguished Dr. William H. Whittsitt, president of the Baptist Southern Theological seminary, of Louisville, Ky. Rev. Bernard is about fifty years old. The future of Mercer seems bright and auspictous. With an active man in the field like Rev. Bernard and with a faculty of marked talent, with so eminent a chalrman as P. D. Pollock, the university should move forward on a prosperous and glorious career, and take high place among the leading educational institutions of the land.

BANK OFFICERS UNDER ARREST. Sensation in Business Circles of Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., August 7.-A. Bequest and J. Fred Lillenthal, president and expresident of the German-American bank, which went under in this city a month ago, were arrested today on warrants sworn out by stockholders. Both men had borrowed large sums of money from the bank of which they were directors, and both had overdrawn their account.

Bequest is charged with breach of trust, in having used bonds in the custody of the bank. It is a misdemeanor under the state law for a bank director to overdraw his account in his own bank, and both men will be prosecuted on this charge. The arrests have created a sensation in the city, and it is said that the men will re city, and it is said that the men will re-taliate by having all of the other directors of the bank arrested on similar charges. Both Bequest and Lilienthal are prom-inent men, the latter being an alderman of the city.

NORTH STATE POLITICAL NOTES. Republican Committee Changes the

Date of Its Meeting. Raleigh, N. C. August 7.—(Special.)—Chairman Holton, of the republican state committee, changes the date of its meeting from the lith to the 15th instant. This change attracts considerable attention and the remark is made that it is probably done to give the republicans the last hid done to give the republicans the last bid for populist support. The colored republi-can chairman of this congressional district says he knows only two negro republicans unwilling to vote for McKinley; that while a good many republicans are in favor of free silver they want it through their party only.

The sixth district democrats will nominate

James A. Lockhart for congress by acclamation Cyrus B. Watson, democratic nominee for governor, was here today. He says he does not intend in his campaign to refer to state issues, as he believes the people know all about them, but that he will devote his whole time to national issues.

The official republican organ says Sena-tor Pritchard was instructed to vote for free silver and will doubtless vote for it whenever it is presented as an indepen whenever it is presented as an independent proposition during his term, but that he is now on the St. Louis platform. John R. Webster, member of the demo-cratic central committee, declares in his paer today that by the action of the state

WHITEHEAD WANTS HARMONY. Alabama Populist Editor Will Withdraw Claims to Election. Montgomery, Ala., August 7 .- (Special.)-Populist Editor J. M. Whitehead, of The Greenville Living Truth, is out in an editorial today in which he claims that he is elected to the legislature from Butler by a majority of sixty-four votes on the face of returns, but in order to avoid possible bloodshed if certain boxes are cast out on Saturday for alleged irregularites, he is willing to withdraw his claims. He does this, he says, mainly because he realizes his party and friends. Francis B. Lloyd is rom The Philadelphia Press. Queens seldom come to this country, but dassachusetts is to be honored by the presence of one this week, and it is probable that she will be seen elsewhere in the United States before the summer is over. The queen's name is Mrs. Paul Kolbe, and as Queen Emma she reigns over the Bismarck archipelago. She is of American and Samoan descent and is said to be a remarkable woman. She certainly has a romantic and intensely tain of a quarter of a century ago, is Queen Emma's uncle by adoption. He was master of the American bark Sterling. in 1871, and having discharged a cargo at Honolulu ran down to Samoa to receive supplies before starting home. Remaining at Apia for some weeks he became intimate with Jonas M. Coe, then United States consul at that port, and his family. Coe was a queer character. He was born in Virginia and was brought up in the banking house of Brown Bros., of New York. His sister having married a member of the firm, Jonas was given a chance to become rich and influential, but being of a roving disposition he went to sea and finally landed in Samoa, where he married a native woman of unusual beauty.

Coe's family influence was used in his behalf and he was appointed consul at Apia. Coe had six children and Captain Harding took a great fancy to them. Finally he asked to adopt one of them and the parents being mindful of the lack of educational advantages in Samoa at length permitted him to take the youngest daugh-ter. Laura, who still lives with him and bears his name. It is her eldest sister that reigns over the Bismarck archipelago. With something of her father's restless energy, Emma, the eldest daughter, accumulated enough money as a girl to buy a small island in the archipelago. She through various industries, added from time to time to her store of wealth and when the opportunity arose added more and more to her domain in the shape of small islands. Then she married a Captain Farrell, who owned some others, and at his death she fell helr to his possessions.
The nathers who lived on the islands not only did not oppose her rule, but as she proved herself the possessor of fine execuwelcomed her reign. Some fifteen hundred people look up to her as their queen and she plans and executes every detail of go ner products by a fleet of vessels which she owns to Australia and sometimes to England.

After Captain Farrell's death Queen Emma married Charles Forsayth, an Australian. The only son by that union, Henry, is now crown prince. He is in charge of his mother's fleet of vessels. A few years ago he visited San Francisco and attracted much attention by the amount of money he spent and the lavish nature of his hospitality. He bought a steam pleasure yacht and some other expensive toys while in this country. When his mother dies he will fall heir to both her private possessions and the throne.

After the death of Forsayth the queen married a third time. This time it was Herman Kolbe, a German, who became her husband, and he still lives. The queen has done much to improve the condition of her people. Cannibalism was quite common on many of the islands when she ascended the throne, and is still indulged in to some extent. This is only the case, however, in those times when Queen Emma's people engage in war with neighboring tribes.

GEORGIA CONGRATULATES.

Cedartown Standard: The very fact that the populists fost ground in north Alabama, where the great bulk of the white vote of the state is cast and where all parties stand the best chance of protecting their candidate against fraud of every kind at the ballot box, absolutely disproves the claim of fraud by the populist leaders. The result shows that the rank and file of the populist party are becoming disgusted with their leaders and many have returned to their old places in the ranks of the democratic party. Alabama democracy has set the pace for 1896, and all the southern states will follow her lead.

Thomasville Times: The first gun from Alabama has been beard. And it sounded the knell of the republican-populist combination.

Grand Jury Returned "No Bill" in Each Case in Floyd County Superior Court.

Rome, Ga., August 7 .- (Special.)-The statement in today's correspondence that two bills had been found against Messrs. J. L. Camp and E. T. McGhee was an error. In either case the grand jury re-turned "no bill," and the reporter, in look-ing through the bills overlooked the fact that they were so returned.

The report did these gentlemen a grave, though unintentional, injustice and The Constitution's correspondent hastens to make a full correction for the benefit of the gentlemen and their friends all over the Mr. J. Accused of Shortage.

This morning a deputy United States marshal arrested Will Bruner, postmaster of a small town in Alabama, just over the Georgia line, and started to Birmingham with him. He is charged with being $240 short in his accounts with the government and no explanation has been made of hor it came about.

Grand Jury Presentments. The grand jury of Floyd county, in its general presentments, say they find the roads in the county in bad condition. They are neglected from different causes. The district commissioners seem to be derelict of their duty, and there is a general failure to enforce the laws as they are. The road hands assigned to different parts, or sections of road, fail to keep the roads in good condition as they should be, and will call the proper authorities attentio to see that the work in the future be done Attention is also called to the law re-quiring the tax collector to make reports to the commissioners of roads and revenduring the tax contector to make rejective to the commissioners of roads and revenue every six months, and they recommend that in the future these laws be enforced and also that the tax collector be required to keep a cash book and to enter the name of each party who pays taxes and the amount and date of payment, also to stamp on each receipt and the stub of the receipt the date of payment. Further on the presentments reads, in regard to the tax receiver's books, saying that the total amount of taxes given in for the year 1895, according to the digest, is $74,937.54, but that the books are badily kept. A great many places where the taxes were entered twice, and persons over age and under age are charged with poil taxes were entered twice, and persons over age and under age are charged with poll tax. It is probable that more errors may yet be detected, there being $16,631,93 in taxes for 1895 which are yet to be collected, of it is almost impossible to determine the correct amount to be charged up to the tax.

The bridge built by the Rome Land Com range built by the Rome Land Company, across the Oostanaula river, at the foot of Second avenue, is reported as having been abandoned by its builders, and the grand jury recommends that it be taken charge of by the county.

SOCIETY NEWS AND GOSSIP.

Mr. John Seymour Panchen has issued invitations to the marriage of his daugh-ter, Gruce, to Mr. Harry Thomas Moore, which will take place Wednesday morning, August 19th, at his charming country home in West End. Miss Panchen is well known in West End. Miss Panchen is well known in Atlanta as a young woman of unusual talents, being not only an accomplished violinist but gifted with a brilliant intellect, and noted as a clever conversationist. She is of a distinctly brunette type of beauty with the group and activation of beauty, with the grace and animal manner which gives the young woman of the south a presence that is never com-monplace and is always magnetic. Mr. Moore is from one of the oldest of Maryland's patrician families, and in winning Miss Panchen has proved himself the pos-sessor of those qualities of mind and char-acter which constitute a perfect gentleman, and which are apparent in the man-ner that distinguishes him on all occa-sions. Since his residence in Atlanta he has held an important position with the Southern railway, and is recognized as one of the corporation's most trusted men. Last night Miss Annie Lou Hawkins gave a delightful dancing party in honor of her guest, Miss McDougal, of Columbus, and Miss Ethel McConico, of New Orleans. Her charming home was appropriately decorated for the occasion and all the younger belies and beaux of society were present. Dancing was enjoyed till 12 o'clock, when delicious refreshments were served, and the occasion was in every sense a most enjoyable one. The "Jean Ingelow" entertainment given at the Agnes Scott institute last night was a great success and afforded a rare treat to the large and appreciative audience present. The programme was replete with charming features well carried out by the clever participants. Miss Belle Crane opened the programme with delightful music. Acting under this information, tone says he refused to produce the books asked for by the commission upon the ground that the matter contained in the books tended to criminate both himself and the Georgia, Florida and Southern. He contends that he should not be com pelled to turn over his book to the com-mission for the reason that he and the road he represents might be prosecuted under the act of the legislature making the under billing of freight a penal offense. He denies that he willfully refused to deliver the books demanded, but states that he refused to deliver the books demanded he refused respectfully and because he felt it was his right to be protected in the mater. The answer also denies the authority of the commission to demand any books and in case of refusal to charge him with eing in contempt of court. The petition was filed through Attorneys Hall and Occupant of a Hand Car That Was Wrecked at a Switch Wants Heavy Damages for Alleged Injuries.

A test case aeffcting the validity of lim-tied tickets sold by railroads was filed in the office of the superior court yesterday by T. F. Cartheart through his attorneys, Arnold & Arnold.

Cartherat was ejected from a passenger train of the Southern railway of the western division last month while he was enroute to Powder Springs. His ticket, which was good only for a limited time, was presented to the conductor, but refused acceptance because it was out of date.

Cartheart was put off the train in the Cartneart was put on the Chattahoochee woods, he says, near the Chattahoochee river, and was compelled to wait eight hours before another train passed, and after Powder Springs whs reached he missed connection and walked the distance late in the night over which he had made arrangements to ride.

The ticket was purchased from the Southern railway for 3 cents per mile, and Carth-cart says he supposed he was buying a ticket that would be good for any length of time he might see fit to use it. When it was handed the conductor it was refused, and his attention was called to a punch mark in the margin giving the day of ex-

Thrown to the Ground from a Car. George McCullough, who was a Fourth of July passenger on a car of the Atlanta Railway Company, filed suit yesterday against the road in the sum of $3,000 for damages alleged to have been received on unt of the negligence of the motorman

McCullough says he asked the conductor to stop at the corner of McDaniel and Richardson streets, and was forced to re-peat the request at least three times be-fore the car was brought to a standstill. When the car finally stopped, McCullough says he stepped upon the running board and was in the act of alighting when the conductor rang the motorman to go ahead, and the car was started forward with a jerk, throwing him to the ground with much force.

A long list of injuries are embodied in the petition. It is alleged that McCullough's body, neck, shoulders and arms were greatly bruised and lacerated; his head was cut and his eye injured and the sight permanently impaired; his arms and limbs were cut, bruised and wrenched, and he is said to have been confined to his bed since the accident. The suit is brought by Attorneys Arnold & Arnold, and is di-rected to the city court.

Hand Car Flies Through the Air. Several weeks ago Green Ray, an employe of the Southern railway, was engaged in propelling a lever hand car through the yards of the road in the western part of the city. The car was running rapidly, when it struck an open switch, and plunged high into the air.

Ray says he went with the car into the Ray says he went with the car into the air, but struck the ground first and the car, which had been badly wrecked, fell in a heap upon him. He says he had his back turned to the switch and was not aware of his danger until the accident had occurred, and it was too late to jump. He was bruised, the petition says, in a fearful manner, and his leg and ankle were twisted and bent, and he will temain a cripple for life. The amount of damages asked is placed at $1,999.

interesting and enjoyable evening's entertainment to those who come out to hear them tonight. Their weekly debates are always interesting, as well as entertaining, and the four orators who are down to deliver the speeches during the evening are gentlemen whose powers of entertaining are known to the many visitors to the past meetings of the club. The subject that will be discussed tonight is: "Resolved, That the government should own all railroads and telegraph lines." Affirmative, G. O. Persons, and Warren Boyd; negative, Hugh M. A Family in Real Need.

The family of J. F. Trammell at No. 28 Venable street is in very destitute circumstances, and unless assistance is rendered in a very short time, they will soon be in a starving condition. A week or so ago the daughter, a small child, died, and the burial expenses took all the money that had been saved up. The oldest son is now ling sick with typhoid fever and is expected to die at any moment. The father is an invalid and unable to work for a living, and the mother is unable to make enough to support the whole family. The chafitably disposed people in that section of the city have kept the family up for a long while, and now the charitable organizations of the city are asked to give them assistance. TRIED A DETECTIVE.

tice Orr Yesterday.

tice Orr Yesterday.

Ed A. Wilson, a private detective of this city, in the employ of the Georgia Detective Agency, was tried yesterday in Judge Orr's court on the charge of being a common cheat and swindler. The warrant was sworn out by Mrs. E. E. Crawford, who lives at 54 Ivy street.

Mrs. Crawford has been keeping a boarding house in the city for some time. During the exposition she was located on Butler street, between Hunter street and Capitol avenue. According to her side of the case Wilson came to her on the last day of October, 1895, and engaged board at the rate of 34 per week, at the same time paying for a week's board in advance. This, she claims, is the only money he ever paid her, and when she would broach the subject to him he would put her off with various excuses, saying that he was employed as detective at the exposition and expected to get some moneyer.

as detective at the exposition and expect-ed to get some money out of that. At an-other time he said that he had fallen heir to a piece of property, and expected to mortgage it. Then he said that he had captured a man in Alabama who had stolen $900, and as soon as the reward was paid him he would settle. Again he said that he had captured a murderer and would get money out of that.

But according to Mrs. Crawford these claims never amounted to anything, or if they did Wilson never paid his board bill,

L. W. Phillips Tried and Acquitted Before Judge Landrum. L. W. Phillips, a white man who keeps grocery store on Magnolia street, was ried and acquitted of many charges in Judge Landrum's court yesterday. The warrants against him were sworn out by L. I. Wolf, a lawyer of this city. It seems that Mr. Phillips and Mr. Woolf had a row some time ago, in which words were the only weapons used. Mr. Woolf called Mr. Phillips something that would not look well in print, for which he was fined $5.75 by the recorder.

Mr. Woolf then went before Judge Lan-drum and swore out warrants for Mr. Phillips on the following charges: Cruelty to animals, selling medicine without a license prescribing medicine for children without a license and selling goods on the Sabbath. After hearing all of the evidence and consuming about two hours of time Judge Landrum dismissed all the warrants.

On May 14, 1891, Eleanor Hightower exe-cuted to the Germania Loan and Banking But according to Mrs. Crawford these claims never amounted to anything, or if they did Wilson never paid his board bill, which at this time amounts to $50. The prosecution introduced Chief Connolly to show that Wilson had never been employed as a city detective at the exposition grounds.

The defense put Mr. S. F. Siskron, who is manager of the Georgia Detective Agency, on the stand. It was proved by him and other witnesses that Wilson was employed by the merchants' patrol during the exposition and that it never paid him anything. The merchants' patrol was an organization of local detectives, which never amounted to much, and went to pleces about last November. The defense also proved that Wilson did have some rewards due him which he could not get until the men were convicted. They also proved that he had fallen heir to some property in Alabama.

After both sides of the case had been presented Judge Orr announced that he would give his decision this morning at 9 o'clock.

NEWS OF THE COURTS

Mrs. McNally Appears as Plaintiff in a Damage Suit.

BEER BOTTLES IN COURT

August Flesh Sues the Atlanta Consolidated Bottling Works Because It Used His Bottles.

Mrs. M. A. McNally and her tin-roofed stores figured in the courts yesterday in a damage suit filed by her attorneys against Johns and Butler. Mrs. McNally owns two stores on Mariet-ta street, and the stores are covered with tin. Had they been covered with any other tin. Had they been covered with any other material it is probable that the courts would not have been appealed to. The petition alleges that several days ago a number of plumbers and tinners were employed by her neighbor to repair a roof on the building, which adjoins one of her stores. She says the tinners walked her stores. She says the timers wanted about over the tin roof on her stores and rolled their tin out and threw their tools about, much to the damage and injury of her property. In fact, she claims the tin-ners made a workshop of her tin roof and hammered and worked without a thought of the great damage they were

When their presence was discovered, Mrs. McNally says her tenants informed the tinners that they must keep off the roof. She says the tinners cursed her tenants and told them to go to hell. In the meantime, it is charged, the workmen con-tinued to abuse the roof and are now in possession of the roof in defiance of the vishes and protests of Mrs. McNally and the tenants. On account of the damage said to have been received by Mrs. McNally's the roof, the courts are asked to render a judgment against the trespassers in the sum of $100. The case is directed to the city court and will be heard at the next term.

Lump of Coal Causes Trouble.

A large lump of coal dropped from a bas-et on the shoulder of a negro in the employ of the Georgia Ice Company has resulted in a damage suit for $2,000 in the city court. The petition was filed yesterday. Little Lillian McMahon, the twelve-yearold child of Mr. James McMahon, was on the porch of her father's residence when a oad of coal was being delivered in baskets from a wagon standing at the gate. As the negro passed the little child, it is said a large lump fell from the basket and struck the child on the head, causing a dangerous wound, from which the blood flowed freely.
It is charged that the Georgia Ice Comany was negligent in not employing a careful and expert man to handle its coal, and the courts have been asked to award a verdict of $$_000$ to the parents of the little p before Judge Lumpkin in a few days which beer bottles will figure as the August Flesh, the owner and proprietor of the Southern bottling works, has filed a suit for injunction against the Atlanta Consolidated bottling works, claiming that the defendant company has been using bottles in which he bottled his sodawater and carbonated heyrages. He prove for coand carbonated beverages. He prays for an injunction restraining it from further use of his bottles and also sues for $2,000 damages which he alleges he has received. The petition states that Mr. Flesh purchased 620 gross of bottles in which he had the name of his company blown into the bottles. These bottles, he says, have been used by the Atlanta Consolidated bottling works, and though no shipments were made to merchants in the city, the defendant shipped the bottles in large quantities to country merchants where the fraud could not be detected.

Beer Bottles in the Courts. An interesting case is scheduled to come

Judge Lumpkin has great page 110.

Judge Lumpkin has granted a temporary restraining order and set the case for an early hearing before him in chambers.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig. Syrup Co. only any sold by all rep-

Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all rep-utable druggists. If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxa-tives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative. then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction

Clothing Clearance

Despite trade conditions we've sold more Clothing than in any previous half year-more in dollars; greatly more in quantity. Onward strides in Clothing have been appreciated. That's all. The law of supply and demand has small regard for cost or values. That may explain the ridiculously low rates now current here......

TO CLOSE OUT.

September 1st we move to 16 Whitehall street. Every pair of Shoes and Oxford Ties must be sold before then, as we are determined not to move a pair into our new store.
